Clackamas County Commissioners Address Next Round of Planning Issues

The Clackamas County Board of Commissioners has instructed its Planning Division to prepare a detailed plan to address the issue of urban and rural reserves.

"Past urban growth boundary discussions have focused more narrowly on where we will grow," said Commission Vice Chair Lynn Peterson. "Where won't we grow is an equally important question that will require discussion with citizens."

The Oregon Legislature recently passed SB1011 which calls for the designation of rural reserves.

At its planning session, Commissioners agreed to use the information obtained through its Complete Communities process and its recent Community Congress as a launching pad for this next planning effort. At the Community Congress, citizens identified the top aspects of a sustainable community. Consistently, the groups mentioned Land use planning (balancing urban and rural area, mix of uses, higher density), Transportation system function (capacity, connectivity), Natural resources (preserving water, green space and open space), Sustaining agriculture (supporting farms) and Parks and open space (recreation).

"It is important to continue to actively engage the public in the next round of planning --- identifying where we will grow and where we should not grow," said Chair Martha Schrader. "Part of this exercise may involve planning scenarios to illustrate the likely consequence of different options."

The Planning Division is expected to present a work plan to the County Commission in the next 90 days.

New Child Passenger Safety Law Passed

On July 1, 2007, Oregon's Occupant Protection Law will reflect National Best Practice.

Changes to Oregon's law require:

Infants must ride rear-facing until they reach both one year of age AND twenty pounds.

Children who weight over 40 pounds must be properly secured in a booster seat until they are age 8 OR 4'9" in height.

Children who are age 8 or older OR are taller than 4'9" must ride properly secured with the safety belt system.

Clackamas County WIC Program Distributes Farmers Market Coupons for Tenth Year

Clackamas County Community Health WIC Program is distributing Farmers Market Coupons to program participants to use at area Farmers Markets. This is the tenth straight year the coupons have been given out.

The goal of the program is to increase fruit and vegetable consumption by WIC participants and support local farmers markets and farm stands.

"The response from participants and market managers is overwhelming," said Dana Lord, Public Health Programs

Education the New Path to Success in Retail Marketplace

There was a time a career in retail meant starting in the back room stocking shelves and working up to management. Those days are a thing of the past. Education is the key to advancement in today's thriving retail industry.

Clackamas Community College recently completed the last piece in an education program that will provide training and coursework in retail management from entry level to an advanced degree. The community college entered into an articulation agreement for students studying retail management to complete a bachelor's degree in the field at Marylhurst University.

The articulation agreement follows closely on the State Board of Education's approval in April of a statewide associate of science (AAS) degree in retail management. Under the agreement with Marylhurst, students will earn the AAS and complete a third-year module at CCC before finishing their final 60 hours at Marylhurst. At Marylhurst, students will earn a bachelor of science degree in management and leadership with a retail concentration.

Education plays an increasingly important role in the retail sector — an industry that has historically promoted from within the company ranks. In the past five to 10 years, education has become more important in advancing in retail.

"It's clear that today's sophisticated retail environment makes it unlikely that people can achieve their career goals without at least some college education," said Cherie Phipps, education director of the Western Association of Food Chains (WAFC). The organization partners with 110 community colleges across the country to provide retail management education for thousands of employees.

The program at Clackamas is unique in two aspects, providing education at the very beginning level through the STAR program — Skills Training for Advancement in Retail — and completing the education through the articulation agreement leading to a bachelor's degree or an advanced degree.

The retail management "career pathway" provides a road map for working students to follow in completing their education. Entry-level classes in the program give students the skills needed to get their first jobs — things like conflict management, marketing and business communications.

Once they are working they can return to school to complete additional coursework to advance in their careers. Many classes are offered online to accommodate the schedule of working adults.

"CCC is a leader in the state and in the Western United States in the career pathways approach to education," said Phipps.

CCC developed its retail management program after the field was recognized by the Workforce Investment Council of Clackamas County (WICCO) as one of the top five industries for economic growth in the area. In addition to retail, WICCO named transportation, health care, utilities and manufacturing as areas for future growth.

"We are designing our programs to help these industries with the goal of filling jobs," said Pam Clem, project coordinator of the college's Retail Academy. The retail career pathway will be replicated in other economic sectors in the future. To learn more about retail management at CCC, con-

- Prohibition on the cutting, grinding and welding of metal in dry, grassy or forested areas between the hours of 1 and 8 p.m. and,
- The mowing of dried and cured grass with power equipment is prohibited between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. except for the commercial harvest of agricultural crops.

Additionally, during a regulated-use closure, off-road vehicles are restricted to travel on improved roads, and only with landowner permission. No off-road travel is permitted.

"The larger forest fuels are much drier than is what is normally typical for this time of year," Jamie Paul, Molalla Unit public information officer said, emphasizing that "even the large fuels like the snags and big stumps are dangerously dry right now. What that means is that if fires get into the snags and big stumps, we can expect them to burn more intensely."

Clackamas Fire District #1 Has a Busy Night Fighting Fires!

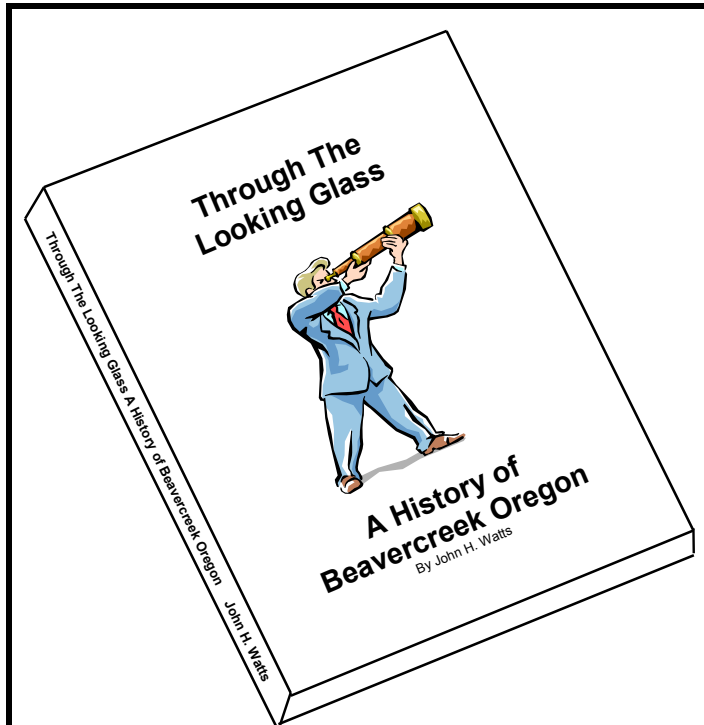

Clackamas Fire District #1 responded to 14 fires between the hours of 8:00 p.m. and 3:00 a.m. during the 4th of July holiday. Of the 14 fires, illegal fire works caused significant damage to a home in Oregon City and another fire destroyed a large barn in Oregon City. The barn fire is under investigation.

House Fire:

July 5, 2007 at 01:09 CCFD1 responded to a house fire at 16417 Trail View Dr. in the Oregon City area. Crews responded to the scene of a house fire and quickly called for a second alarm to bring additional firefighters and equipment to the scene. It took fire crews approximately 30 minutes to extinguish the blaze. After a thorough investigation, fire investigators determined that an illegal aerial fire works display in the area caused this house fire. Related information: Crews also responded to a bark dust fire located at 16318 Trail View Dr. near the same time.

Barn Fire:

July 5, 2007, at 04:51 CCFD1 responded to a barn fire at 19653 S. South End Rd in the Oregon City area. Crews responded to the scene of a "fully involved" barn fire, the nearby field was also on fire. Crews quickly suppressed the field fire and took up defensive fire attack positions to keep the fire confined to the barn, thereby protecting the field and nearby homes. South End Rd was closed for several hours during the incident due to fire apparatus on

Impaired Readers Won't Have to Wait for the New Harry Potter Book

Oregon State Library

Talking Book and Braille Services Begins Loaning the Audio Cassette in July

Visually-impaired readers are used to waiting for the latest bestsellers to arrive on audiocassette, but not this time. Thanks to the State Library's Talking Book and Braille Services, Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows by J. K. Rowling will be available to patrons of the program just days after the book's publication date July 21st.

"We're going to great lengths to have the new Harry Potter book available on audiocassette," said Jim Schepke, State Librarian. "We don't think visually-impaired Harry Potter fans should have to wait longer than sighted fans."

Talking Book and Braille Services receives most books on audiocassette under a partnership agreement with the Library of Congress, National Library Service. A talking book is a professionally recorded book on cassette. Books and special players are loaned free of charge to individuals who are blind, have low vision, or whose disability makes it difficult to turn the pages of a conventional book.

According to Schepke, even though the publication date for the latest Harry Potter book is July 21, 2007, the Library of Congress has said that their talking book version won't be available for several months. To bypass the long wait, the State Library used private donations to purchase copies of the book on commercial audiocassette. Schepke expects the library to be circulating these to patrons by the end of the month.

Talking Book and Braille Services is a free program of the State Library for individuals who are unable to read standard print. The library offers more than 60,000 titles on audiocassette, including the Harry Potter series. For more information about eligibility, visit the website at www.tbabs.org or call toll-free, 800-452-0292.

Summer is here and our rivers and lakes are getting lower and warmer. Anglers who adapt to summer water conditions and understand where fish should be holding will have the most success. Availability of oxygen is key for fish survival. They will go where oxygen levels are highest and still find shelter from predators. Food is generally secondary for the salmonids (salmon/trout) to more comfortable water. Warm-water fish get more aggressive towards food and have a higher tolerance for the heat.

early mornings will be best.

During the summer, the availability of dissolved oxygen (DO) becomes crucial for trout survival. When water temperatures push into the high 60's, trout become more lethargic, less hungry, and more susceptible to stress. The critical temperature for trout is about 74 degrees. Factors that lead to more trout friendly conditions are flow, depth, shade and surface acreage. Flow is perhaps the most important. With a continuous supply of fresh water, the pond's oxygen level is constantly being refreshed. Depth preserves cooler water in ponds through stratification. However, fish brought up from cooler depths and released into warmer surface waters may be more inclined to turn belly than swim vigorously away. Under these conditions, you must take special care in reviving trout prior to release. The more surface acres a lake or pond covers also adds to the potential availability of oxygen through the process of osmosis. Understanding the factors affecting the availability of dissolved oxygen, will lead you to the trout. Trout will seek out the most comfortable water in a lake or pond. During the summer, in ponds with flow, the most oxygenated coldest water is on the bottom. In stillwaters without flow, the water will stratify into three layers. The most trout suitable water is in the middle, and sandwiched between hot/oxygenated surface water and cold/deoxygenated dead deep water.

Rivers: Visibility is high and levels are low. The summer steelhead and spring Chinook numbers are down statewide this year. The Clackamas is kicking out a few summers for those putting in their hours. Small bobbers, light lines with tiny baits are best. The Sandy is fishing poorly this spring. The Molalla has a small native run and gets a few stray hatchery summers/springers from the Willamette. The MO does have a good population of smallmouth bass and they make for a fun summer float. The coast has also lacked fish. There are a few summer steelhead being caught in such rivers as the Wilson, Trask and Nestucca, but numbers are way down from previous years. Spring Chinook are all but absent this year. There is some good cutthroat fishing to be had during the summer. Fly anglers will find success with Elk Hair Caddis, Muddler Minnows or similar patterns. Evenings and early mornings will be best.

Stillwaters: Fish respond to rising water temperatures in different ways. Bass and panfish get more active and aggressive...up to a point. Poppers and surface lures on a summer evening can be very exciting. Water clarity will be a big determining factor in size of lure and amount of action you'll need to impart to the lure to induce a bite. Clear conditions require less movement and smaller lures. Greener waters tend to require more speed and flash. Evenings and

Serious Injury Crash Highway 211 North of Colton

A 15-year old Canby-area girl was critically injured Wednesday morning, July 18, 2007, when the car she was riding in lost control and was struck by another vehicle on Highway 211 about two miles north of Colton. The car's driver was seriously injured.

On July 18, 2007 at approximately 5:45 a.m. a 1994 Ford Escort four-door station wagon driven by Norma Martinez-Sanchez, age 51, from Canby, was northbound on Highway 211 near milepost 23 when it lost control, went off the highway and then came back onto the highway where it was struck along the passenger side by a southbound 2002 Dodge 2500 pickup driven by CHARLES T. CZAJKOWSKI, age 57, from Estacada.

MARTINEZ SANCHEZ was seriously injured and transported by ambulance to Oregon Health Sciences University (OHSU). It is not known yet if she was using safety restraints but her car's airbag did deploy.

The Ford's passenger, PAMELA VASQUEZ, age 15, from Canby, was using safety restraints and was critically injured. She was transported by ambulance to OHSU.

CZAJKOWSKI was using safety restraints and was not injured. Oregon State Police troopers from Portland and Tualatin are continuing the investigation. Colton Fire Department and ODOT assisted at the scene.

house, 807 Main Street in Oregon City.

The event began at 9:30 a.m. and included a dedication of the new Ralph M. Holman Law Center, a reopening of the Main Street entrance at the courthouse, speeches, music and tours.

The celebration also included the return of the statue Lady Justice that has been in storage or on display in other locations for decades.

"The renovated buildings will not only provide improved safety, but the additional capacity will allow more cases to be heard in a timely manner," said Clackamas County Chair Martha Schrader. "We're pleased to be able to offer Clackamas County citizens easier access to their County courthouse."

Background on Lady Justice

Gifted to the courthouse in the late 1800's by County Judge "Colonel" William L. White, Lady Justice stands nine feet tall, is carved from redwood and was originally painted white. An activist for the construction of the 1884 courthouse, Judge White commissioned her from an Italian carver for the sum of $1,300. When that amount is adjusted for inflation, the cost would have been $28,132.23 in 2006.

Referred to as "Colonel White's Mary Ann" by women friends of the Judge, Lady Justice ruled over Oregon City from the gable on the Main Street side until the demolition when she was taken to the county sheds for storage during construction of the current courthouse.

Lady Justice spent many years lying patiently in storage until the late 1980's when she was acquired by the Clackamas County Historical Society who hired local restorer Fred K. Hahn to bring her back to life.

Blindfolded, Lady Justice is the symbol that justice is meted out objectively, without fear or favor. Her double-edged sword in her right hand symbolizes the power to simultaneously separate justice and reason. The scales in her left symbolize the pros and cons of each case. Both had to be replicated as the sword appears to have disappeared while in storage and the scales blew away in the wind long before she was removed from the roof. Picture courtesy of Museum of The Oregon Territory.

On the agenda there were three land-use issues for the members to consider. One was for a two year extension for the Beavercreek Charitable Trust to complete requirements for the community park. There was also a renewal for a manufactured home for care on S. Thayer Road and a Forest Dwelling Template Test in order to place a home on 20 acres on S. Thayer Road. All three applications were approved.

Decisions on past applications were shared with those present including three decisions that were approved in between our meetings. Because of the timing of the applications the members were not able to comment on these. All three were applications for manufactured homes for care. They were located on S. Beaver Glen Dr., S. Loder Rd., and S. Killdeer Rd.

Two upcoming hearings also drew quite a bit of discussion. The Beavercreek Roadside Concept Plan, located on S. Beavercreek Road (old airport, Oregon City Golf Club and adjacent properties), whose hearing will be on August 1st and the proposed 22 house subdivision on Steiner Road whose hearing is to be August 30th.

There is a lot of concern with both of these land use issues. The former, because the land was brought into the Urban Growth Boundary by Oregon City and Metro for Industrial use, but is now being planned for high density residential and some commercial. This is not what the Hamlet was told when the proposal was brought before the members.

The later, a 22 lot subdivision, has already been approved by the County and the State as a Measure 37 claim. The owner of the property intended to build a 37 lot subdivision, but because of issues, changed the application to 22 homesites. The owner is also taking on the burden of improving the intersection where it enters Beavercreek Road. Transportation and safety issues seem to be the biggest concerns with the development along with the fact it is on land zoned as Exclusive Farm Use (EFU).

It was suggested that the Hamlet propose a round-a-bout at the intersection of Steiner, Yeoman and Steiner Roads. This would be proposed as a third choice in how to deal with the transportation safety issues. It would slow down traffic, but allow a free flow of vehicles around the school and would not create a 7 acre island of farmland that would be effectively rendered useless for farming due to being totally surrounded by three heavily traveled roads.

Our Clackamas County Liaison, Christine Roth, was in attendance and announced that the Hamlet is closer to getting the "Welcome" signs to acknowledge our community. The designs should be finalized in a few weeks and then submitted for approval.

Other items discussed, but addressed elsewhere in this issue were the Hamlet Happening scheduled for September 8th at the Hopkins Memorial Tree Farm and the new URL for the Hamlet.

Everyone is encouraged to attend the monthly Hamlet Community meetings and the quarterly Town Hall meetings to participate and share ideas and concerns on the issues pertinent to our community. Clackamas County Revises Measure 37 Claims Review Process Pending Voter Action in November

The Clackamas County Board of Commissioners has decided to resume taking action on those Measure 37 claims requesting 10 or less lots and residences.

The decision was made in light of the Oregon Legislature's action this spring to extend the processing timeline for Measure 37 claims and to have Oregon citizens vote on revisions to Measure 37 in November 2007.

The revisions, known as Measure 49, would make a number of changes to Measure 37, including only permitting residential claims with a one-to-three-home-site option or a four to ten home site option if certain strict conditions are met. These changes would apply to claims already filed, including those where a decision has been made by the County.

Commission Chair Martha Schrader emphasized the Board's intent to "be fair to those people who have filed a Measure 37 claim and proceed in good faith. We want to keep the process moving, but not waste County money and staff time on claims that may be invalid if Measure 49 passes."

Of the 1,052 Measure 37 applications received by Clackamas County – more than any other Oregon County or City – 412 remain to be acted on by the Board. County Planner Jennifer Hughes estimates that less than one-third of those applications are for 10 or fewer residential lots.

Measure 37, approved by Oregon voters in 2004, allows the waiver of land-use restrictions put in place after property owners acquired their land or compensation for the cost of those restrictions. Measure 37 also requires the County to take official action on each claim within 180 days of receiving the claim.

This spring the Oregon Legislature extended the response deadline on claims to 540 days and referred the issue – now known as Measure 49 -- to the November 2007 ballot.

The changes approved by the Clackamas County Board mean that the board will proceed to act on staff-reviewed residential claims of 10 or less home sites on the consent agenda of its business meetings, but will not take further action on any other claims until after election day. Claims approved between now and November will include a "disclaimer" to make it clear that the County's approval could be impacted by Measure 49 if it is approved in November.

Oregon Food Bank Food Recall

Castleberry Food of Augusta, Ga., has announced a nationwide recall of canned food products due to possible botulism contamination.

In response, Oregon Food Bank, which has distributed three Castleberry products through its member network agencies, is asking anyone who received Morton House Chili (15 oz. cans) from an OFB local member agency, such as an emergency food pantry or other hunger-relief program, to return the product immediately to the same agency or program from which they received it.

As a precautionary measure, Oregon Food Bank is also asking recipients to return Morton House Beef Stew (20 oz. can) and Castleberry Beef Stew (24 oz. can), which are not currently on the recall list but are being investigated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration.

According Rick Young, OFB director of operations, Oregon Food Bank and its 20-member regional food banks have accounted for and isolated the affected products in their warehouses and have alerted local member agencies.

Oregon Food Bank is a nonprofit, charitable organization. It is the hub of a statewide network of more than 884 hunger-relief agencies serving Oregon and Clark County, Wash. Oregon Food Bank recovers food from farms, manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, individuals and government sources. It then delivers that food to 20 regional food banks across Oregon. Sixteen are independent charitable organizations.

Drowning Victim Rescued on Molalla River

The Clackamas County Sheriff's Office responded to a drowning call at the Wagon Wheel Park in Mulino at 7:00 p.m. A Hispanic male, 20 years old, began swimming across the Molalla River when he apparently became tired and went under the water.

A family member and two Samaritans went into the water to retrieve the male and brought him to the shore. While on the phone to 911, the family member and Samaritans began CPR with instructions from the dispatcher. Shortly thereafter, emergency services arrived and continued the procedures. It was immediately determined that Life Flight was necessary and activated. The male was life flighted to Emanuel Hospital where he remains in stable but serious condition in the intensive care unit.

"Hello I'm Grady! I would be great with kids over 10 years old (I'm a bit too active for younger ones). I get along with other dogs and cats. I'm probably housebroken. I know sit and down but, I need a bit more practice when it comes to walking on a leash. I am eager to please and easy to work with. I am very friendly so you should come get to know me today!

For more information on me or other dogs available for adoption, please call the shelter at 503-655-8628 or come by for a visit and a little one-on-one. You can also see us at the Clackamas County Dog Control website at:

www.co.clackamas.or.us/dc/adoptdog.jsp

The shelter is located at 2104 Kaen Rd., in Oregon City. I'm available from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m., Thursday thru Monday. I'd sure love to get the chance to meet you. "FERGUS"

Clackamas County Commissioners Will Work with Stakeholders for Parks Solution

Park enthusiasts serving on two volunteer boards advising the Clackamas County Board of Commissioners about parks met and recommended the formation of a task force to study the entire issue of alcohol, waterways and parks inside the county.

The annual meeting was held at Happy Valley Park and drew nearly all of the park advisory boards' members to discuss the temporary ban put into effect at Barton and Carver parks on the Clackamas River. That ban with modifications remains in place through Wednesday, September 5th.

Parks board members agreed that the alcohol ban at Carver Park, the smaller of the two county facilities, will remain in place. Carver is the location well known as a termination spot for day rafters.

The ban will also remain in place at the Barton Park day-use areas except for reserved picnic areas with a permit – which shows a reservation was made – and in the campground for overnight patrons.

"It was helpful to talk through some of the issues," said Rob Smoot, who chairs the County Parks Advisory Board. "And it's reassuring that a long-term solution can be reached with the more lengthy process for input from the public."

See you next month... The Editor!
