

BEAVERCREEK BULLETIN

Volume 19, Issue 3 BeavercreekBulletin.org March 2017

The Bulletin is Back!

We are excited to share that the Bulletin is back after a six-month hiatus. It was temporarily out of print as the previous editor, Sharon Charlson, moved to the coast making it necessary for her to stop publication. The mantle has been passed to two Beavercreek residents - sisters Jennifer Logan and Melissa Logan - who are honored to continue the tradition. This "first" issue under their helm is dedicated to Sharon and her 18-year legacy as editor.

Community Spotlight: Sharon Charlson

Sharon Charlson moved to Beavercreek Oregon in 1983, and in 1997 became involved in the community when the City of Oregon City began discussions about annexing and industrializing Beavercreek. A year later, fellow member of the Beavercreek Committee for Community Planning (BCCP) Tammy Stevens asked Sharon if she would like to write and publish a newsletter to keep residents informed of issues affecting the community. Her first response was no as she didn't have previous experience, but thankfully she changed her mind and decided to take on the task.

In September 1998 Sharon published the first issue of the Beavercreek Bulletin to help ensure the people of Beavercreek were aware of anything that could affect its residents and to give them a voice if they didn't understand or like something that was happening. It was just two pages long, which you can read in the archives at BeavercreekBulletin.org. Today the Bulletin is regularly over 20 pages and has been published each and every month, on time, for almost two decades!

While sharing news has been a cornerstone of the Bulletin, Sharon's vision from the beginning has been to invite the residents of Beavercreek to stay connected with one another and to our community in any way they could. She also wanted to make sure the book by John H. Watts "Through the Looking Glass: A History of Beavercreek Oregon" stayed in production for all those who were interested in knowing the history of the Beavercreek community. Sharon was given sole distribution

She shared a future vision: "I would love to provide grants to those interested in starting local bulletins like this one. They help residents of rural communities solidify their identity, as well as keep in touch with issues that affect them and each other."

We want to say a collective "thank you" to Sharon for her commitment to publishing the Beavercreek Bulletin from September 1998 to August 2016, every month, without fail. Sharon, your work is genuinely appreciated and we wish you the best in all your future endeavors.

We will be spotlighting residents of Beavercreek each month. Interested? Email editor@beavercreekbulletin.org.

February Hamlet Meeting Recap

Guest speakers were Dick Orr, Customer Development Consultant at BCT, and Amy Manning, real estate broker, Oregon Realty Co. Dick shared an update on BCT's community outreach including opportunities for residents to win prizes via scratch-it tickets available at no cost in the office in March, and quarterly giveaways on its Facebook page. He also indicated that BCT's plan to bring broadband internet to the Hamlet is progressing and will be sharing updates later this year.

Amy gave an update on the real estate market, saying nationally we're seeing an increase in interest rates of 1 to 1.5 percent. Also, grants and programs for homebuyers are being reviewed at the federal level including reducing Private Mortgage Insurance rates, so if you're looking to buy a home it's important to discuss any pending changes with your realtor. At the state level, Portland Metro is experiencing a housing shortage which is driving prices up. New policies are being discussed that may moderate the number of no-cause evictions, control rent increases, and require homes for sale to undergo an energy audit. In Beavercreek, 68 homes were sold in 2016 ranging from $140,000 to $930,000 and averaging 10 days on market.

The group discussed landslide issues being faced by home buyers, as it is the buyer's responsibility to discover whether the property is in a landslide area. This can be done using maps provided by the Oregon Department of Geology and Mineral Industries (DOGAMI) at www.oregongeology.org. The group also discussed the Beavercreek Road Concept Plan and related transportation issues. Three land use applications from Beavercreek residents were discussed and approved. The Hamlet Treasurer shared the board's year-end balance sheet from 2016.

County Seeking Rural Residents to Join Planning Commission

Clackamas County is looking for people interested in serving on its Planning Commission. The nine-member commission advises the Board of County Commissioners on land use applications and issues in accordance with the requirements of state law, the County Comprehensive Plan, Zoning & Development Ordinance, and County Code. There are three vacancies to be filled in spring 2017.

Planning Commission members are appointed to four-year terms by the County Board. Members do not need to have expertise in land use, but should be interested in hearing public testimony, working with a group to reach consensus, and making recommendations to the Board of County Commissioners.

"Planning Commission members are sought from all over the County, but this year we are especially hoping to find representation from the rural and eastern areas of the County," they said in a statement.

Applications can be completed online at https://web3.clackamas.us/abc/, by calling 503-655-8751, or in person at the Public Services Building, 2051 Kaen Road, Oregon City. All applications must be turned in by 6 p.m. Monday, March 13, 2017.

Backyard Burning Starts March 1

If you've been cultivating a pile of organic yard debris over the winter, backyard burning begins Wednesday, March 1 and runs through June 15. If we have unusual dryness or wind, it's important to check before you burn by calling 503-632-0211 for the daily burn message or look for signs posted outside local fire departments.

You are not allowed to burn materials including garbage, plastic, rubber, petroleum treated materials and any material that creates dense smoke and noxious odors. Backyard burn piles can be no larger than 10X10X10 and must be a minimum of 50 feet from a structure or other combustible materials. A maximum of two burn piles may be burned at any one time if space allows. All backyard burning fires must be extinguished by the Fires-Out Time, which means no flames or smoke at the end of the established burn hours. clackamasfire.com

Is Your Well Water Contaminated?

OSU Extension suggests that water from household wells should be tested every year for coliform bacteria and nitrates. Even if your water looks and tastes good, hidden contaminants could be present. Having a maintenance and testing schedule for your well water allows you to not only make sure your water is always safe to drink, but also lets you keep track of the water quality over time. A list of state-certified labs and information on water testing are available from your county health department, the OSU Extension Service, or the Oregon Health Division at 503-731-4317. Learn more from the OSU Extension Well Water Program online at http://wellwater.oregonstate.edu or by calling 503-986-0900.

Oregon Ranks 10th for Suicide Deaths

Sadly, Oregon ranks 10th in the nation for suicide deaths, with suicides being the second leading cause of people aged 10-34 years old. If you are in crisis, call 1-800-273-TALK (8255) or the Clackamas County line at 503-655-8585. In the aftermath of a suicide death, families are often left struggling to cope. A new guidebook "Children, Teens and Suicide Loss" has been designed specifically to help families with children and teens who are survivors of a suicide death better address their complex practical and emotional needs. Scotch Broom: Pull in Spring

Scotch broom (Cytisus scoparius) is a widespread invasive weed in our community. A single plant can produce well over 20,000 seeds that last in the soil for more than 30 years (some estimates are as long as 80 years). This weed displaces native and beneficial plants and smothers tree seedlings, hampering reforestation efforts. It causes loss of grassland and open forest habitat. Flowers and seeds are toxic to humans and most animals. Scotch broom creates highly flammable fuels increasing wildfire danger.

Scotch broom can be controlled by various methods depending upon the severity and the location of the infestation. Plants can be pulled when they are small and dug when they are larger. They can be cut between flowering and seed production and stumps can be treated with herbicides. Do not put plants with seed pods in compost or yard waste. They should be bagged and placed in the garbage. Also, do not burn plants with seed pods because when exposed to fire, the seeds burst from their seed pods.

Springtime is a great time to control Scotch broom by pulling. Moist soil makes it easier to pluck young broom plants out of the ground. For older, more mature plants, try using a weed wrench. The Clackamas Soil and Water Conservation District has weed wrenches in a variety of sizes. They are available to loan at no charge. Contact them at 503-210-6000 to reserve.

If you are looking for a yellow blooming bush for spring color, rather than planting Scotch broom, consider the native Tall Oregon Grape or the ornamental Forsythia hybrid.

Causes of Electrical Fires By Shawn Olson, Clackamas Deputy Fire Marshal Captain

According to the National Fire Protection Association, any electrical work is to be done by a licensed electrician. Adding electrical circuits, replacing wire, and relocating electrical panels are examples as to when to hire a licensed electrician. All work should be done under the benefits of an electrical permit, which ensures the work is conducted correctly. Sloppy electrical wiring are signs of work that was not performed under the benefits of an electrical permit.

Common causes of electrical fires:

- 1. Homeowners performing their own electrical work.
- 2. Hiring electricians who don't take the time to do it right.

- 3. Overloading surge protectors.
- 4. Overloading a building's wiring system.
- 5. Plugging multiple appliances into an extension cord has the potential to overheat the extension cord causing a fire.
- 6. Using multi-plug adaptors without a ground.

pesticides. The rules, proposed in 2016, are a result of updates to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Worker Protection Standard.

The updated standards affect areas such as training, pesticide labeling, and respiratory and emergency eye-washing requirements, as well as rules to protect occupants of farm labor housing when pesticides are sprayed on nearby crops. The rules will take effect Jan. 1, 2018, to allow time for the additional rulemaking process and transition to the new standards. Thank You Melissa and Jennifer By Sharon Charlson, Past Editor, Beavercreek Bulletin

Hi everyone... I would like to take this opportunity to give a rousing "Welcome" and a very grateful "Thank You" to Melissa Logan and Jennifer Logan. Both are recent additions to our little community and a welcome addition indeed. These two ladies have volunteered to take over the reins of the Beavercreek Bulletin. Fantastic! I had given up hope that our community paper would continue and not simply fall by the wayside to be forgotten.

I had given up hope that someone would care about our community enough to agree to take on the responsibility to continue where I left off in August 2016. But, lo and behold here they are.

I have told both of them that this will be their "baby" from now on and they can do it as they wish as long as they stay true to the paper's mission of sharing local information that might be of interest in our rural community. Both are very excited to restart the paper and this is the first issue.

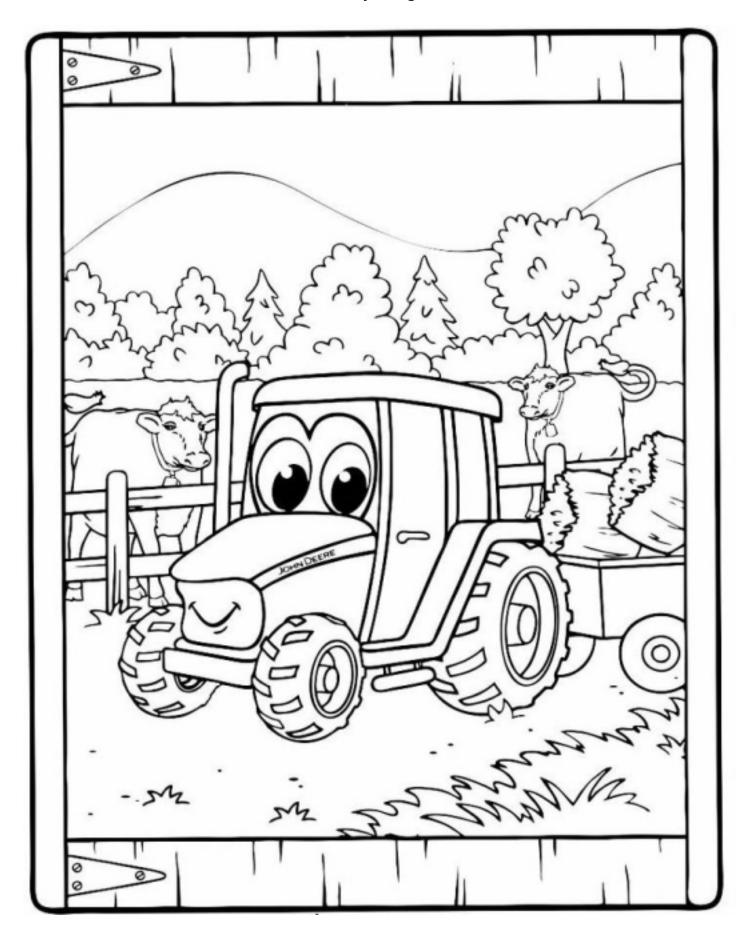

So, that said, please be kind. It will take them a little while to get up to speed. I have no doubt in my mind that they will do a stellar job and take the Bulletin to new heights. I hope all of you who read and enjoyed the paper in the past will support Melissa, Jennifer, and the paper by spreading the word about its rebirth.

Tell your friends, and if you have a business, share your information with the community in the form of advertising. The paper needs your support to flourish!

See You Next Month!
