Two Scholarships Awarded by District

Clackamas County Soil and Water Conservation District announces that Jessica Lindsey of Beavercreek and Jairo Romero of Canby are the 2014 recipients of the District's scholarships. These awards of $2,000 each are available to Clackamas County high school graduates or students currently residing in Clackamas County who will be considered a sophomore or higher in fall 2014. Award recipients must be working towards an associates, bachelor or graduate degree in the field of agriculture (including horticulture), natural resource science or a related discipline.

Jessica Lindsey, daughter of Barry Lindsey and his wife Elizabeth Graser-Lindsey, currently a junior at Portland State University, is studying mechanical engineering with the goal of modernizing horse-drawn farm implements. Jessica has extensive experience with horse-drawn equipment

Southern Oregon Family Farmers Defeat Goliath!

In the May 20 primary election, voters in southern Oregon's Jackson and Josephine Counties overwhelmingly passed measures to ban genetically engineered crops. The campaigns, led by local family farmers concerned about the lax oversight of genetically engineered crops by the State and Federal governments, prevailed despite record breaking spending by Monsanto, Syngenta, Dow Agrosciences and other out-of-state companies.

The Jackson County measure requires that all genetically engineered crops be removed from the County within 1 year. Jackson County was allowed to enact its measure after the Oregon Legislature banned all counties except Jackson from adopting local seed and food ordinances in late 2013. For this reason, the future of Josephine County's measure is uncertain.

Despite being outspent, the Jackson County measure passed by a 2-1 landslide. More than 150 local family farms supported the measure, organizing under the ban-which she uses on her family farm, at cultural events, and as a summer farm intern. She hopes to improve safety and efficiency and to create multipurpose, light and sturdy horse-drawn implements that support sustainable small farms in this country and are useful to farmers in third world countries. She believes horse-drawn agriculture is good for the environment and helps connect consumers to the land and nature.

Jairo Romero, currently a freshman at Clackamas Community College, is studying agribusiness. His goal is to become a farmer and to share and expand upon his farming knowledge. Jairo has been working on a local family farm since he was fifteen and is the first member of his family to attend college. He is excited to utilize his skill and knowledge to employ conservation practices that create healthy soils and conserve water and enable him to harvest a high quality product.

The board of Clackamas County Soil and Water Conservation District is pleased to honor these young scholars with scholarships as they work to protect natural resources and support agriculture for a sustainable future. This is the fourth year the District has offered scholarships to local students. ner of the Our Family Farms Coalition. We believe the decisive Jackson and Josephine County votes demonstrate strong bipartisan support across Oregon for stronger oversight and regulation of genetically engineered crops that pose economic risks for so many of Oregon's family farmers

Also on May 20, voters in Jackson County overwhelmingly passed a new Agricultural Extension District, which will help ensure consistent funding for educational and technical programs that aid farmers across southern Oregon.

Friends of Family Farmers is proud to have supported both of these important farmer-led efforts.

Molalla Buckeroo Giant Parade Road Closure

Well, it's almost that time of year when the City of Molalla celebrates our country's independence. In Molalla, that means it's almost Molalla Buckeroo time. Part of the Buckeroo festivities include the Giant Street Parade on the morning of July 4th.

The Molalla Police Department wants to remind everyone planning on attending the Big Parade that there will be a 5k run right before the parade that utilizes the parade route. The Freedom 5k is scheduled to start at 9:20 a.m. In order for the route to be safe for the contestants and spectators alike, we will be closing the entire parade route at 9:00 a.m. This means that anyone planning on attending needs to be in their desired area prior to 9:00 a.m. Once the route is closed, vehicle traffic will not be allowed into the parade route area. Also, the parade route encircles a large part of the downtown core and residential areas, so vehicle traffic will not be able to enter or exit the downtown area until after the parade has finished.

Life-saving CPR Performed After Mobile App Notifies Nearby Off-duty Firefighter

On Friday, May 9, 2014, off-duty firefighter Scott Brawner was working out at a local health club when he received an alert through PulsePoint, a 9-1-1 connected mobile app designed to alert CPR-trained citizens of Sudden Cardiac Arrest (SCA) emergencies in their proximity. This alert saved a man's life.

Using the map presented by the PulsePoint app, Scott immediately made his way to the reported patient location. In less than a minute, Scott found the man unconscious in the parking lot outside of the health facility where a security guard had first found him unresponsive and called 9-1-1. Scott immediately assessed and began hands-only CPR. He continued providing chest compressions until paramedics from American Medical Response (AMR) and Clackamas Fire District #1 arrived to provide advanced care.

"As a fire fighter I know that every minute that passes without a SCA victim receiving resuscitation, the chances of that person surviving decrease 10 percent." said Scott Brawner, Firefighter/Paramedic with Tualatin Valley Fire & Rescue (TVF&R). "By adopting PulsePoint, agencies are removing much of the fate and luck in survival by involving CPR-trained citizen rescuers in cardiac arrest response."

"The PulsePoint app did its job by alerting a Good Samaritan simultaneously with the dispatch of our crews," said Bill Conway, EMS Officer for Clackamas Fire District #1. "This incredibly positive outcome is why Clackamas Fire, like so many organizations throughout the U.S., invested in this type of technology."

The app on Scott's phone is from the non-profit Pulse-Point Foundation. The app is designed to reduce collapse-to-CPR and collapse-to-defibrillation times by increasing citizen awareness of cardiac events beyond a traditional "witnessed" area and by displaying the precise location of nearby public access defibrillators (AEDs).

much easier for citizens who are trained in CPR to use their life-saving skills to do just that...save lives! Through the use of modern, location-aware mobile devices PulsePoint is building applications that work with local public safety agencies to improve communications with citizens and empower them to help reduce the millions of annual deaths from sudden cardiac arrest.

Deployment of the PulsePoint app can significantly strengthen the "chain of survival" by improving bystander response to SCA victims in public settings and increasing the chance that lifesaving steps will be taken prior to the arrival of emergency medical services (EMS) professionals. Just two years after launching outside the San Ramon Valley (CA) the PulsePoint app has been adopted in 600 cities and communities in 18 states.

PulsePoint is built and maintained by volunteer engineers at Workday, a Silicon Valley-based company that creates enterprise cloud applications, and distributed by Physio-Control. The original idea came from Richard Price, the former chief of the San Ramon Valley Fire Department who wanted to bridge the gap between the critical minutes following SCA and the 13 million Americans who are CPR trained, but often don't know their skills are required.

The PulsePoint app is available for iPhone and Android and can be downloaded from the iTunes Store(TM) and Google Play(TM). Learn more at www.pulsepoint.org.

About Cardiac Arrest

Out-of-hospital cardiac arrest is a leading cause of death in the United States, accounting for an estimated 424,000 deaths each year, more than 1,000 deaths per day. The American Heart Association estimates that effective bystander CPR, provided immediately after cardiac arrest, can double or triple a person's chance of survival. However, less than half of cardiac arrest victims receive bystander CPR and even fewer receive a potentially lifesaving therapeutic shock from a public access AED. Improving bystander CPR rates and access to AEDs is critical to survival.

Different than a heart attack, sudden cardiac arrest is caused when the heart's electrical system malfunctions and the heart stops working properly. For every minute that passes without a SCA victim receiving resuscitation, the chances of that person surviving decrease 10 percent. After 10 minutes the chances of survival are minimal.

YES on Measure 3-435!

Thank you voters! Thank you, Oregon City! We are very excited to report that Measure 3-435, approving the authorization of bonds up to $6 million for the expansion of the Carnegie Library, was approved. With this, we can move on to next steps.

We are currently in the process of hiring a contractor to add to our existing team of architect and project manager. Then design work will start. An architect will be at the library every week to be available to talk about the project, what people want and what most reflects Oregon City's library needs. Stay tuned as this project takes shape. And thank you!

Editor's Note: Even though Beavercreek residents could not vote on this issue there was a contingent from our community that went out and helped with canvassing for the measure. Beavercreek is in the library district and benefits from the use of the library.

Legacy Health Goes Mobile

Legacy is the first health system in Portland offering a multi-function mobile app

As health care consumers become more engaged in their care and more savvy in how they access it, Legacy Health announced today it is the first health system in Portland to offer a free, multi-function mobile app. The Legacy Health consumer app allows patients to interact with physicians, clinics and hospitals regarding how, where and when they access their care. The free app will be available for everyone on Apple iPhone and Google Android devices.

Key features of the app include:

- * "In Case of Emergency" lock-screen wallpaper displays critical medical and contact information so emergency responders may call patients' contact people. It also includes the ability to list conditions, medications, allergies and other important information. This feature takes seconds to set up and could save lives.
- * MyCards feature helps users keep track of their and their family's health insurance information, making it available at their fingertips. It holds details on insurance carriers, copays and even a photo of insurance cards.
- * A built-in link to MyHealth so patients can communicate with their doctor or clinic to ask questions, get lab results, appointment information, current medications, immunization history and more on their mobile devices. This privacy enabled feature will also make it more convenient for new patients to download and use the Epic MyChart app, which Legacy calls MyHealth.
- * Provider directory allows patients to look up physicians by name or specialty and "favorite" them.
- * Locations lets patients select Legacy hospital, clinic, outpatient imaging, pediatric, physical therapy or urgent care locations and the app will give directions from the patients' current location.
- * The sharing function allows patients to send location and provider information to friends and family by text and email.

To download Legacy Health's app or view the step-by-step instructional video, please visit the Legacy website at www. legacyhealth.org/phoneapps or look up Legacy Health Consumer App in the App Store on any iPhone or Android device.

Lost Films Chronicle Dawn of Hydroelectric Power in NW

The Bonneville Power Administration Library has released a new collection of six BPA-produced films from the 1930s, '40s and '50s that takes viewers on a cinematic journey into the early years of the Northwest hydroelectric power and transmission systems. The DVD set, titled "BPA Film Collection Volume 1, 1939-1954," is the first compilation of films from the agency's archives ever made available. And it has received a warm reception.

"The series forms a composite portrait of the river - a forceful, magnetic, photogenic presence - and of the people who spent their lives attempting to tame it," says Anne Richardson, host of the Oregon Movies, A to Z website.

For regional historian and filmmaker Ellie Belew, they are a captivating introduction for those who want to begin to understand the management of the Columbia River Basin. "These DVDs bring to life not only the actual build-out of regional infrastructure, but also the attitudes and assumptions that supported development of publicly owned power utilities in the Pacific Northwest," Belew observes.

Since the DVD's release in January, the BPA Library has been flooded with requests.

"We handed out 500 copies in the first five days," says librarian Libby Burke, a film archivist with a degree in cinema studies who curated the DVD collection.

So far, the BPA Library has mailed more than 1,800 copies to people all over the region.

"We've received requests from as far away as Alna, Maine; Amherst, Massachusetts; and Tempe, Arizona," Burke says. "And we even mailed a copy to the "Big Quonset Hut" at Grand Coulee Dam."

While the films chronicle the origins of electric power in the region, it turns out the story behind the collection is also one of discovery.

Twenty years ago, BPA transferred its 16-millimeter films to videotape. But last winter when Burke began preparing for a film festival, the original prints were missing from the BPA archives and presumed discarded or even destroyed. But in a rare twist, much to the surprise of Burke, the National Archives and Records Administration discovered eight storage boxes with 50 reels of BPA films in cold storage in Seattle.

"We were genuinely shocked," she says. "Every once in a while, a lost film is found, but you don't usually get back an entire collection of original prints. It's like a miracle."

And the timing couldn't have been better. With the return of the lost films just weeks before the planned release of the collection, BPA postponed distribution in order to provide clean, digital transfers from the originals of the six films featured in the DVD set.

Burke says the condition of the originals was light years better than the 20-year-old videotape transfers. "The new transfers look beautiful," she says. "The improved detail, color and sound complement the true quality and value of these special films."

The new collection includes three of the most notable films made by BPA: "Hydro" (1939), the first film produced by BPA's motion-picture division; "The Columbia: America's Greatest Power Stream" (1949), the most famous BPA-produced film, containing songs Woody Guthrie wrote while employed by BPA; and "Highline" (1950), about the building of the Northwest's high-voltage electric transmission system.

It also showcases three films about the Columbia River power system and the Pacific Northwest in transition: "Power Builds Ships" (1942), about how the ship-building industry in the Northwest helped win World War II; "25,000 Volts Under the Sea" (1952), about the remarkable design, transport and laying of the underwater high-voltage cable that electrified Washington's San Juan Islands; and "Look to the River" (1954), a rather impressionistic color film about the expansion of the dam system, with a score by Oscar-winning composer Ernest Gold. As a bonus, the set includes a booklet of movie posters and photographs, as well as introductions by Burke, who offers insight to the films on each disc.

Viewers should be aware that the films portray the populist perspective of the period, which predates some of the cultural and environmental sensitivities of today. "These films were made at a time when those issues weren't traditionally considered," Burke explains. "The primary considerations were economic development and promoting public power. But with that in mind, we should still appreciate the history and purpose of these films."

Strawberry Festival Huge Success!

Thank you Beavercreek!! The Annual Strawberry Festival Dinner, Silent Auction and Raffle at the "Ten O'Clock Church" was a huge success again this year.

The dinner, under the direction of Chef Josie Evans, was so delicious and her famous scalloped potatoes were pure comfort food. The Strawberry Shortcake was mouth watering and we want to again thank Albeke Farms for donating the wonderful strawberries.

Also, a big Thank You to Pam Owens for making the Silent Auction and Raffle so successful. She is the leader when it comes to bringing in a wide variety of items for the event and we are truly grateful for all of her hard work. Thank you to everyone who donated items or services to this important fundraiser and the many people who volunteered their time to make this another great event. The Auction/Raffle brought in close to $7,000.00 and the Dinner close to $2,500.00. The proceeds will help the church's many missions, including our Food Pantry and Summer Camp Youth Programs.

Recognition and another big Thank You goes to BCT for their help in advertising with colorful flyers, two big roadside signs, Raffle banners, table bidding sheets, etc., and their donation to the auction. We also want to thank Sharon Charlson, and the Beavercreek Bulletin, for their continual help with all our event advertising.

But most of all, "THANK YOU" to all those community members who came to our event. We couldn't have done it without you. We hope everyone had a great time and we look forward to seeing you at our Strawberry Shortcake and Strawberry Sundae booth at the BCT Backyard Bash on July 12.

Oregon City Police Make Arrest After Man Exposes Himself to A Plaid Pantry Clerk

On June 20, 2014, an adult male suspect entered the Oregon City Plaid Pantry on Leland Road on two separate occasions during the day, intentionally exposing his genitals to a female store clerk. The female victim was able to obtain a license plate for the suspect's vehicle. The suspect's vehicle returned to the store just before 10:00 p.m. leading the victim to call 911.

Oregon City Patrol Officers responded to the Plaid Pantry where the victim helped police identify the suspect as 51 year old Phillip James Flateau. Police contacted Mr. Flateau at his residence in Oregon City. Mr. Flateau was arrested for Public Indecency and lodged in the Clackamas County Jail with a bail of $6,250.00.

cuit Court in an effort to prevent a new Oregon City fee from negatively impacting ratepayers of the Tri-City Service District. The following statement can be attributed to Clackamas County Administrator Donald Krupp. The County will have no further immediate comment on the matter.

Last November the Oregon City Commission voted to impose a fee on public utilities operating within an Oregon City right of way. As a result, the Tri-City Service District, which manages the Tri-City Water Pollution Control Plant in Oregon City, is required to pay the city nearly $200,000 to conduct its operations on behalf of three member cities: Gladstone, West Linn, and Oregon City.

Clackamas County believes Oregon City's fee is excessive and represents an unreasonable burden for customers in the Tri-City Service District. The County also believes Oregon City's fee is legally questionable and is pursuing legal action against the City to eliminate or reduce the impact of the fee on district customers.

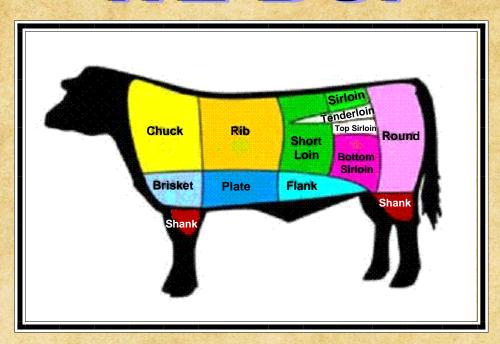

The Tri-City Service District budget committee has recommended the rate increase necessary to pay for the fee be passed on to Oregon City exclusively, as it does not relate to services provided to the district.

Oregon City had the option of charging a fee based on linear-feet within the City's right of ways, resulting in about $15,000. The City is charging the district approximately $191,000 in franchise fees for 2014 and more in future years.

These types of fees are rare, as they increase the cost of basic services, such as water and sewer. These essential services support critical infrastructure in our region, protecting public health and the environment while promoting economic development. Some states have banned the imposition of similar fees for this reason.

Review of 2015 Health Insurance Rates Begin

Beginning June 10th Oregon consumers can weigh in on proposed health insurers' rates for 2015 small employer and individual health benefit plans. During this public process, consumers can also review insurers' cost and quality metrics, which insurers had to submit for the first time this year. Examples of cost and quality metrics are costs per member per month for emergency department visits and percentage of women who receive breast cancer screenings.

surance Division today posted health insurers' rate requests for small employer and individual health benefit plans. The division must approve any rates before they can be charged to policyholders.

"Oregon has a transparent and rigorous process for reviewing health insurance rates," said Insurance Commissioner Laura Cali. "Over the next two months, the division will conduct a thorough review of each rate request to ensure the rates are reasonable and justified."

Consumers have many options to participate in the public process:

* Provide input on the proposed rate filings. The public comment period starts June 10th and continues through July 18. People can comment online through http://www.oregonhealthrates.org/ or in person at public hearings.

* Attend the public hearings or watch the hearings online.

The filings include plans that comply with the Affordable Care Act, as well as "transitional plans" and "grandfathered plans" that existed before January 1, 2014. Along with 14 insurers, two Consumer Operated and Oriented Plans (CO-OPS) filed plans and proposed rates with the division.

The division posted examples of proposed premiums in seven regions across the state at http://www.oregonhealthrates.org/?pg=proposed_rates.html. The charts show examples of monthly premiums and the percentage change from the rates approved by the division for 2014. The amount of premium a particular person pays depends on age, location, how many family members are on the plan, and plan choice. Tobacco use can increase the price of plans, too.

"We value and encourage the public to participate in the process and provide input," Cali said. "We continually strive to provide clear information to help consumers better understand our process and how we make decisions about health plans offered to Oregonians."

In addition, the division uses federal grant funds to contract with the Oregon State Public Interest Research Group (OSPIRG) to represent the public by choosing certain rate filings to review and participating in public hearings.

The division will make decisions on rates by early August and post consumer-friendly documents that describe the decisions. Plans will be available starting Nov. 15, 2014, to purchase through Cover Oregon, agents, and insurers.

The proposed rates are for plans for businesses with fewer than 50 employees and individuals who buy their own coverage rather than getting it through an employer, which affects about 10 percent of Oregonians.

Barlow Road to Close June 30 - September 1

Clackamas County will close Barlow Road at Zimmerman Road from June 30 - September 1, 2014, to improve safety at the Barlow/Zimmerman intersection. The closure will be in effect 24 hours a day beginning at 7 a.m., June 30 and ending by 5 p.m., September 1.

The road will be completely closed to all vehicles, including local traffic and emergency vehicles. Local residents, emergency vehicles, garbage vehicles, postal vehicles and schools buses will be required to use the posted detour route.

This project will improve sight distance, reduce crashes, and generally increase safety and traffic flow at the intersection by reconstructing and realigning 1,400 feet of Barlow Road, minor reconstruction of Zimmerman Road, widening shoulders, laying back cut slopes and lowering the road's vertical profile. The project is funded by the federal High Risk Rural Roads Program.

CRT Launches New Cabaret

Clackamas Repertory Theatre begins its new Sunday Cabaret Series on July 13. "Sundays at Seven" will offer a unique selection of jazz standards, classic and contemporary musical theater and original compositions.

One talented performer headlines each of the three shows. Marti Mendenhall, a nationally known jazz recording artist performs on July 13. Merideth Kaye Clark, star of last year's Clackamas Rep production of "Kiss Me Kate;" takes the stage in August, and musical theater singer/dancer Don Kenneth Mason is featured on Sept. 28.

Originally from Oregon City, Mendenhall studied classical piano and voice at the University of Northern Colorado, and has taught music, and jazz and scat workshops to groups of all ages. Mendenhall's performs jazz originals that push the boundaries of jazz, pop, cabaret and alternative genres. Joining her are Dustin Hunley on keys, Eric Gruber on bass, Mark Griffith on percussion and Erin Ibara and Bethany Small on backup vocals.

Clark, who earned Drammy and Portland Area Musical Theatre awards earlier this month as best actress in a musical, appears August 17 with pianist Mont Chris Hubbard. Before relocating to Portland in 2012, Clark appeared with many regional theaters, participated in numerous concerts and originated roles in two off-Broadway musicals. She also performed the role of Elphaba in the first national tour of the Broadway musical "Wicked." "An Evening with Merideth Kaye Clark" will feature Broadway standards, new favorites and original songs.

The series concludes on Sept. 28 with Don Kenneth Mason, whose show "Something Wonderful, Something Good" features the songs of Rogers and Hammerstein. Mason came to Portland to perform in Portland Center Stage's "Oklahoma!" and stayed. He has since been featured in "Cats" at Broadway Rose and won a Drammy award for Zachariah in "Blood Knot" for Profile Theatre. He has appeared throughout the United States in musical

Clackamas County Proposes Program to Respond to Barking Dog Complaints, Increased Dog License Fee

On Thursday, July 17, the Clackamas County Board of Commissioners will hold the first of two public hearings on proposed dog ordinance changes and the associated fees and fines.

The public hearing will be part of the Commission's regular business meeting, set for 6 p.m. in the Board Hearing Room on the fourth floor of the Public Services Building, 2051 Kaen Rd., Oregon City. The public is welcome to attend to testify.

People who have comments but are unable to attend are encouraged to send them in writing to the Board of County Commissioners at bcc@clackamas.us no later than 6 p.m., July 30. The second hearing is scheduled for 10 a.m., Thursday, July 31, in the same location.

The major proposal in the draft ordinance amendments would establish a new resolution-based program to respond to complaints about barking dogs. The program would require two new staff positions in Clackamas County Dog Services to respond to and help resolve these complaints. The focus would be on voluntary compliance and mediation between the complainant and the dog owner, but could lead to fines and hearings if no other resolution can be found.

Since the new program is designed to resolve problems through mediation and agreement, the revenue generated from fees and fines is expected to be minimal. In order to cover the expense for additional staff, the Board is considering an increase of $6 per dog license per year.

Because of the need to hire new staff, and to publicize the program and any potential license fee increase, the ordinance amendments related to the barking dogs program are proposed to not go into effect until January 8, 2015

Other proposed amendments in the ordinance include the following:

- · Changes to reflect new and revised state laws on animal rescue entities, tethering restrictions and minimum care requirements, including a new license for animal rescue entities and fines for not complying.
- · Adding an option for people who apply for a multipledog license to either ask the County to inspect their premises or submit an inspection certificate from a statelicensed veterinarian.
- · Removing a provision that allows the dog services manager to ask for assistance from law enforcement to execute a warrant for search and seizure of property.
- Adding a fine for veterinarians who do not comply with the County's ordinance to report canine rabies vaccinations to Dog Services. All the proposed changes, as well

Sheriff's Office Gets Reports of New 'Jury Duty Warrant Scam'

The Clackamas County Sheriff's Office is getting fresh reports of phone scam that made the rounds in the area last year.

A Sheriff's Office Community Service Officer (CSO) reports that in the last week, citizens are again being contacted by a subject falsely identifying himself as a Sheriff's Office employee -- who then runs a variation on the telephone "jury-duty warrant scam."

Five reports of the scam were received by this CSO on Sunday, June 8 alone.

Here's how our CSO describes the latest scam calls:

1. The victim gets a call from someone who identifies themselves as "Lt. Alan Smith" from the Clackamas County Sheriff's Office. (We do not employ a "Lt. Alan S Smith.")

- 2. The fraud caller then tells the victim that there is a warrant for the victim's arrest because he or she didn't show up for jury duty. (This is in no way Sheriff's Office policy.)
- 3. The caller then tells the victim they can pay the "fine" over the phone by purchasing a Green Dot MoneyPak at Wal-Mart. This can be used to reload a prepaid debit card as follows: https://www.moneypak.com/reloadhowitworks.aspx
- 4. The scammer then tells the victim to call back with the MoneyPak card number. The scammer is presumably using these numbers to re-load a prepaid card in his possession.

The alleged scammer's phone number used was the same for each caller in these recent cases.

If a scammer calls you, identifies as a law-enforcement official, says you're wanted for missing jury duty, and tries to extract a "fine" or any other financial penalty, it's not us -- and you should contact the Sheriff's Office to report the call (with the scam caller's phone number ASAP using our non-emergency line: (503) 655-8211. http://www.clackamas. us/sheriff/contact.html

Oregon City Carnegie Library Put on the National Register of Historic Places

The Oregon City Carnegie Library was constructed in 1913 with funding from steel magnet Andrew Carnegie. It is one of over 1,500 libraries built throughout the country by the philanthropist. Designed in the American Renaissance style, this handsome, brick-clad structure has served Oregon City nearly continuously from its construction to the present. A restoration in 2010 removed an addition to the building, bringing it back to its original appearance.

Oregon's State Advisory Committee on Historic Preservation recommended the building's nomination in their October 2013 meeting. It is one of eleven Carnegie libraries in Oregon that are listed in the National Register, which is maintained by the National Park Service under the authority of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966.

Oregon City Municipal Elevator Listed in the National Register of Historic Places

The Oregon City Municipal Elevator in Oregon City is among Oregon's latest entries in the National Register of Historic Places.

The Oregon City Municipal Elevator is a 130-foot-tall, public elevator tower rising from an underground tunnel in historic downtown Oregon City to connect with the city's second level atop a bluff to the east. The elevator is a Modern, reinforced concrete structure designed by Gordon E. Trapp and constructed by the Portland engineering firm of James & Yost in 1955. This unique structure was designed to be futuristic in style and incorporates minimal ornament. Possibly its most spectacular feature is the views from the viewing platform. A unique series of prints installed on the platform walls provides changing, historical views of the downtown and the Willamette River that complements the 300-degree view. The elevator is integrated with the McLoughlin Promenade and the Grand Staircase extending from the bluff to the downtown, which Clackamas County are also listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

McLoughlin Promenade Listed in National Register of Historic Places

The McLoughlin Promenade, a historic park site along the edge of Oregon City's prominent bluff, was constructed on land donated for that purpose by Dr. John McLoughlin in 1851. It consists of three major parts: a 2.300-foot-long basalt stone and concrete pathway that runs along the bluff; the Grand Staircase, which traverses the bluff; and Singer Falls, a man-made waterfall with five separate tiers that takes Singer Creek from the top of the bluff, down the cliff face, to the historic downtown. The Promenade was constructed with the help of the Works Progress Administration during the Great Depression and was completed in 1939. Pedestrians can also travel from the top of the bluff to the downtown in this area via the Oregon City Municipal Elevator, which is also listed in the National Register of Historic Places. The Promenade was recently restored and a new art installation added at the base of the Falls in 2011. These facilities, along with the spectacular views from the Promenade, ensure the continued popularity of this site with visitors and residents alike.

Oregon's State Advisory Committee on Historic Preservation recommended the site's nomination in their October 2013 meeting. It is one of twenty-nine historic properties in Oregon City that are now individually listed in the National Register, which is maintained by the National Park Service under the authority of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966.

"Hit Mosquitoes Where They Live" Campaign Launches as Mosquitoes Swarm

Clackamas County Vector Control District is rolling out a new media campaign just in time for mosquito season. The goal is to create more visibility and better comprehension of the services they offer in addition to educating the public about ways they can protect themselves from mosquito-borne illnesses.

Vector Control kicked off the campaign in May with a new logo, placing the pesky mosquito front and center on banners, fleet trucks and billboards. They also designed a new website (fightthebites.com), added a Facebook page, and created a catchy animated video.

"It was really a matter of expanding our reach and using methods of prevention education that resonated with residents," said Betsy Knight, Clackamas County Vector Control District Director. Clackamas County Vector Control District is a special district within Clackamas County responsible for control of flies and mosquitoes within the County. Their work helps to reduce the likelihood of vector borne diseases such as West Nile Virus, Chikungunya, and Dengue fever.

West Nile Virus has been found early this season in neighboring States and the warm, dry summer forecast may raise the potential for mosquito-borne diseases in Clackamas County as well. Also, making the timing of this message extremely important, rain followed by temperatures in the 80's creates the perfect breeding conditions for mosquitoes that will be ready to hatch if simple precautions are not taken.

The catchy lyrics in the new Clackamas County Vector Control District Public Service Announcement (PSA) will have viewers singing along to tips on how to "Hit Mosquitoes Where They Live" including; birdbaths, plant containers, boats, covers and more. The PSA will be used in Clackamas County Vector Control District educational programs and it is also available to local media outlets. View the new 30-second animated video on the Clackamas County YouTube Channel at: http://youtu.be/MgPWWkgM1xl

Calendars, magnets, brochures and posters with tips on how to "Fight the Bite" are also available free to the public at the Clackamas County Vector Control District office, 1102 Abernethy Road, Oregon City, OR 97045.

Former CCC Athlete Named National Wrestling Coach

Matt Lindland, Olympic silver medalist and former Clackamas Community College wrestler, has been named the national Greco-Roman coach by USA Wrestling. Lindland, a 2000 Olympian and 2001 World silver medalist as a Greco-Roman athlete, will lead the national program, coaching the nation's elite wrestlers at the U.S. Olympic training center in Colorado Springs. He will guide the development of the program at all levels.

Lindland wrestled for the Cougars at CCC from 1998-89 under coach Jim Jackson and went to nationals where he missed placing by one point. The following year, he won the National Junior College Association national championship in the 158-pound weight class. He earned two associate degrees at CCC. After his national title, the University of Nebraska offered Lindland a full-ride scholarship. He is a four-time senior national Greco-Roman champion.

He has been active with coaching the CCC team, one of the nation's top junior college teams. Under coach Josh Rhoden, CCC won the national team title in 2011. This season, Clackamas won the National Duals title, placed third at the NJCAA Nationals and had a record seven All-Americans.

Lindland is a native of Gladstone and wrestled for both Gladstone High School and CCC. Lindland won the silver medal in Sydney in the 167.5-pound weight class after fighting all the way to the Supreme Court for the right to be an Olympian. He fought a referee's decision during the Olympic trials that was ultimately decided by U.S. Supreme Court, earning him a berth on the U.S. Greco-Roman wrestling team.

Our 4 Legged Friends

My Name is "CHEVY" and I'm available for Adoption!

Hello... my name is "Chevy" and I'm available for adoption. I'm an American Staffordshire Terrier/mix.

I'm a 5 year old neutered male and I weigh approximately 30 to 60 lbs. As you can see I'm tan and white in color with folded ears and a long tail.

Here is what I have to say for myself!

"Greetings! You can call me Chevy. I'm so special that they've even named cars after me! When we first meet, I may be a bit shy. A calm approach, gentle attention, a snack, and time spent together will let me get to know you. I am very smart. I know "sit", "down", "shake", and "speak". A lively guy like me would be perfect for an energetic family with older respectful children - people who will include me in their active lives. I hope to meet you today.

For more information on me or other dogs available for adoption, please call the shelter at 503-655-8628 or come by for a visit and a little one-on-one. You can also see us at the Clackamas County Dog Control website at:
