September Hamlet Meeting Recap

Hamlet community meetings happen every month on the third Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. in the Beavercreek Grange. They include guest speakers from the community, land use applications and activities, and Hamlet business, as well as serving as an open forum for Hamlet residents.

Dick Orr of BCT, the Beaver Creek Cooperative Telephone Company, shared details about a couple recent events they hosted for local groups and also reminded people that the annual Beavercreek Craft Bazaar is scheduled for November 11. There are over 100 vendors who participate each year, and there are still a few booth spaces left. If you'd like to participate, call BCT at 503.632.3113 as soon as possible to sign up.

Speakers from Clackamas Community College (CCC) included Bob Cochran, Dean of Campus Services, and Lori Hall, Public Information Officer, to discuss updates on the $90 million bond measure 3-447, which was approved by voters in the Clackamas Community College district in November 2014. Retiring CCC president Joanne Truesdell was able to leverage the bond to get the State to match $16 million in funding. The funds are being used to update and expand college classrooms and labs, and to modernize equipment to meet industry standards:

- The Harmony West building will be complete by end of year and will host allied health program classes for winter term starting January 2018.

- The foundation has been laid for the Industrial Technical Center that includes facilities for students studying manufacturing, technology, machining, and other tech related programs - and completion will be in 2018.
- The DeJardin building is for students studying biology, chemistry, and other STEM programs. It is being expanded and is slated for completion in 2019.
- Additional facilities and campus upgrades include the transit center, roof renovations, new elevators, seismic upgrades to Randall

Hall, and renovations for the automotive department. The Student Services & Community Commons will be completed in 2021.

- A separate $160,000 grant is going toward improvements to the Environmental Learning Center with the grand opening set for May 2018.

There was just one new land use application from a resident on Henrici Road seeking renewal of an exception home occupation for continued used of a detached building for woodworking business. There was also a single land use activity for a resident on Henrici Road who was seeking renewals of a temporary home for care permit, which was approved subject to conditions.

For Hamlet updates, bond measure 3-517 was approved allowing Oregon City Police and Municipal Court to upgrade facilities to comply with state required seismic safety standards before the deadline of 2022. Separately, the development plan for Abernethy Place - a Hampton Inn hotel and mixed use building at 17th and Washington - is going to the City Council for a vote on November 9.

In the June 2017 Hamlet meeting, residents expressed local concerns with Clackamas County Commissioner Sonya Fisher who was the guest speaker that month. The concerns ranged from boundary protection and urban reserves to unhandled invasive species in fields and clear cuts. The board received a letter from Sonya who acknowledged the concerns.

There is a new Clackamas County Code Enforcement supervisor who will speak at a meeting in January or February on how the office is refining its process for responding to complaints.

The Hamlet of Beavercreek exists for its residents to protect and preserve the rural culture of the area. Monthly meetings are the best place to share feedback and learn how to get involved.

About the Bulletin

Beavercreek Bulletin is a monthly newspaper by and for residents of The Hamlet of Beavercreek, Oregon. Our mission is to inform and educate residents on key issues that affect the Hamlet in order to protect and preserve our rural way of life. It is published by the Beavercreek Committee for Community Planning (BCCP), a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization.

Hamlet Board Elections on October 25 at Town Hall

The Hamlet of Beavercreek Board elections are underway with one returning nominee and two new nominees. Clackamas County will have someone present to run the election, taking place on Wednesday, October 25, at 7:00 p.m. in the Beavercreek Grange. As a reminder, the Hamlet is advisory to the Board of County Commissioners. The boundary includes the area of the now inactive Beavercreek Community Planning Organization (CPO) area. Directors serve two year terms.

Cheryl Boffard is running for another term, and applicants Jack Hipp and Kenny Sernach are seeking to replace members that are stepping down. Hamlet directors must be 18 years old or older, live or own property or a business in the Recognized Area of the Hamlet area, and be willing to volunteer time to work on projects, help represent the area, and fulfill responsibilities as described in the bylaws.

Make sure your voice is heard--join us on October 25 to elect the new directors.

Backyard Burning Reopens

From Clackamas Fire District #1

The Clackamas Fire District #1 backyard

burning (Domestic Open Burning) season begins October 1 and ends December 15, unless fire danger levels are "High" or "Extreme." Backyard burning is the burning of organic yard debris on the property of origin, on approved burn days, during approved burn hours, as indicated by the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ). Clackamas Fire District #1 has a daily burn message line that is a recording of whether DEQ determined the day to be a burn day. The burn message line is 503.632.0211. The burn information applies to the areas served by Clackamas Fire District #1.

Backyard burning is only allowed on property located outside of the DEQ Burn Ban Area and is not allowed in compact housing developments.

Backyard burning materials must be dried, to the extent practicable, loosely stacked (to provide adequate air supply) to ensure good combustion; therefore, avoiding smoldering fires. If the smoke or odor emission affects others, the fire must be extinguished. Materials prohibited from burning, include but are not limited to, garbage, plastic, rubber, petroleum treated materials, and any other material that creates dense smoke and noxious odors.

Backyard burn piles can be no larger than 10'x10'x10' and must be a minimum of 50-feet from a structure or other combustible materials. A maximum of two burn piles may be burned at any one time, if space allows. All backyard fires must be attended to at all times and extinguished by the fires out time, which means no flames or smoke beyond the end of the established burn hours.

For more information on backyard burning, associated rules, best burning practices, and all other types of regulated burning, please visit the Open Burning Categories information on the web at www.clackamasfire.com/outdoor-burning/outdoor-burning-categories/.

Rain and Mud Season is Coming – Be Prepared!

By Cathy McQueeney, Clackamas Soil & Water Conservation District

Fall has yet to officially arrive, but social media is already abuzz about the upcoming rain and mud season. Landowners with livestock face additional challenges once the Oregon rains arrive in full. Muddy pastures and paddocks can cause health concerns for horses, damage to forage areas invite invasive weed problems in the spring, and chores become significantly more difficult.

Prepare now for a better winter for both you and your animals! Our conservation planning staff provide free technical resources to help you make the best decisions for your site.

Here are a few things you can do now to protect your animals from health issues related to mud, and help you avoid slogging through a muddy mess. These good stewardship practices will also help protect our many local waterways, safeguarding vital fish and wildlife habitat AND the drinking water supply for many of our friends and neighbors. It's a win-win situation all around!

- Use fences to keep animals out of creeks, wetlands, and lakes. Provide alternative water sources if needed.

- Practice good pasture management for a healthy pasture, avoiding grazing when the soil can't support the weight of the animal. If the animal is leaving hoof impressions in the soil, the soil is too soft.
- Designate a sacrifice area where you are willing to keep your livestock during the winter and for short periods during the growing season, after pastures have been grazed down to three inches. This protects pastures from being destroyed during the rainy winter season. The vegetation in your sacrifice area will be trampled and the ground will become muddy, but this also allows your pastures to recover from grazing and promotes healthy grass and hay stands.
- Install a heavy use area that will keep your animals out of the mud. Work with your local Soil and Water Conservation District to design the heavy use area for your particular situation.
- Maintain a grassy area around the sacrifice area to filter any runoff that may occur. This buffer should be at least 25 feet wide around the sacrifice area, and should be wider if your sacrifice area is near a stream.
- Install gutters and downspouts on all buildings and divert water away from the sacrifice area or barnyard.
- Plant trees and moisture-loving shrubs outside of sacrifice areas. Trees can drink a lot of water, helping to keep the area drier and reducing surface runoff.

Let the Clackamas Soil & Water Conservation District help you win the battle with mud and safeguard your livestock! Contact us at 503-210-6000 or online at conservationdistrict.org. Blog adapted from Tips on Land & Water Management for Small Acreages in Oregon.

BLM Offers Outcome-Based Grazing Authorizations

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) announced a new initiative to provide grazing permit holders more flexibility in the management of livestock while also protecting the public lands.

Under the demonstration program, the BLM will work with grazing permittees and other stakeholders in identifying 6 to 12 "Outcome-Based Grazing Authorizations" in its first year. Grazing authorizations typically emphasize process and prescription. The new authorizations will instead emphasize ecological outcomes, allowing livestock operators more flexibility to make adjustments in response to changing conditions such as drought or wildland fire. This innovative concept is intended to develop and determine the effectiveness of these permits to manage livestock grazing on public lands in order to meet both natural resource and operational objectives.

"Farmers and ranchers know the wildlife and the land they work better than anyone, it only makes sense that we would enlist them in conservation efforts," said Department of the Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke.

The new authorizations will emphasize conservation performance, ecological outcomes and cooperative management of public lands that will also provide greater opportunity for an operator to manage ranching operations that are both economically and environmentally sustainable.

Through this new demonstration program, the BLM plans to work with permit holders and other stakeholders to show that livestock grazing on the public lands can operate under a more flexible framework than is commonly used in order to better reach agreed upon habitat or vegetation goals. The BLM and its partners in the grazing community will share experiences and best practices that will determine if additional authorizations can be successful in the future.

The BLM administers nearly 18,000 permits and leases held by ranchers who graze their livestock (mostly cattle and sheep) on more than 21,000 allotments. Livestock grazing occurs on 155 million acres of public lands.

The BLM will solicit project proposals through its state offices with a deadline of Oct. 13.

Vehicles Hit by Gunshots South of Canby

The Clackamas County Sheriff's Office is investigating five incidents in which vehicles were damaged by alleged gunshots south of Canby in the past two months. Deputies have determined that the incidents took place near the intersection of S. Canby-Marquam Highway and S. Barnards Rd. The public is urged to use extreme caution in the area as the investigation continues.

In the intervening time the Sheriff's Office has been seeking tips from the public, has patrolled and conducted interviews in the area, and has assigned detectives to investigate this string of incidents. There have also been approximately 10 reports of gunshots heard in the area in the intervening time, but no vehicles struck -- including a report of gunfire sounds approximately one hour prior to the most recent vehicle-damaging incident.

The latest incident happened at approximately 3:20 a.m. on Monday, September 25. The victim driver reported that his passenger window had been broken, but was unsure how it occurred. Once deputies were able to investigate, they located a bullet fragment inside the vehicle. It appears that the bullet shattered the window, then traveled into the driver's sun visor -- missing the victim's head by mere inches.

No suspect has been spotted or described by victims to date. The Sheriff's Office is seeking additional victims and information in this case. Anyone with information is urged to contact the Sheriff's Office Tip Line -- by phone at 503-723-4949 or by using the online email form at <https://web3.clackamas.us/contact/tip.jsp>. Please reference CCSO Case #s 17-20840, 17-20816, 17-19830, and 17-25410.

Bat in Clackamas County Tests Positive for Rabies

Public health officials recommend the following steps to safeguard community members, families and pets:

- Vaccinate your pets, including animals that are being fed on the property, like feral cats. However, feeding wild or feral animals is not recommended.

- Do not handle a live or dead bat. Call a professional wildlife removal service. A bat seen during daylight hours is likely ill

Scam Alert: Fraudulent Phone Scams

The Oregon City Police Department along with several neighboring agencies are receiving a large amount of fraudulent phone scam reports. Some of the phone scams are claiming that you need to pay the person on the phone a fee because there is a warrant for your arrest. These phone scammers are claiming to be from a police agency, sheriff's department, or federal agency. Sometimes they have your name, address, date of birth, and phone number. The scammers are demanding money in forms of pre-paid visa cards, iTunes Cards, Green Dot cards, and other similar pre-paid cards. These are all scams! Do not fall victim to these scammers even though they may sound convincing.

Here are some helpful tips:

- Do not answer calls from a phone number that you do not recognize. If it is important the

It's a good thing when you're shopping for insurance.

Independent insurance agents don't work for just one company and that means better choices for you. They can check out your coverage and compare rates with multiple insurance companies to make sure you are getting a great rate.

company or government agency will leave a message.

- If you receive a message demanding a call, call that agency specifically and verify the identity of the person who called you.
- DO NOT buy pre-paid cards. No police agency, sheriff's office, federal agency, IRS, or court will accept these cards and will not call you asking you to purchase these cards for payment.
- If you do answer a call. Ask for specific information from the person that you can verify. Politely tell the caller you will verify the information and call them back. Ask them for a good call-back number. Once you disconnect call the agency in question and verify the information you received. If after hours, all local police agencies have a 24-hour dispatch center that can verify the identity of who is working.

PLEASE SHARE these simple tips with your family and friends. Most of the scammers are persistent and demand money. The Oregon City Police Department, along with other police agencies will not call you for money. Information about the Oregon City Police Department can be verified at 503-496-1600 or Clackamas County Dispatch, 503-655-8211.
