Community Spotlight: Beavercreek Memorial Cemetery

Residents may know where the Beavercreek Memorial Cemetery on Kamrath Road is, but perhaps not how it came to be. Laura McKay, the Cemetery's secretary/treasurer and general record keeper, shared with us its history as well as ways the community could help preserve one of the Hamlet's historic treasures.

Laura's husband Cecil McKay, Jr. and his sister Marilyn McKay Bender are descendants of Mr. Elias Edwards who donated the original acreage for the cemetery. Laura took us back to the 1800s when "family lore says that little Johnny Hughes died from eating too many green apples, and Great Grandpa Elias Edwards gave an acre of land to provide a place to bury Johnny, thus starting a community cemetery."

However, some time after Johnny's funeral it was discovered that the grave had been dug on the wrong side of the property line, and Johnny wasn't actually buried in the land that had been donated by Edwards. It turns out the cemetery was located on land belonging to Mr. Thomas Daniels, which adjoined the property. When the error was discovered, Mr. and Mrs. Daniels graciously agreed to donate that acre of land. "This is why there's a curve in Kamrath Road at the Cemetery to this day!" says Laura.

Mr. Elias Edwards died a few months later and is the second person to be buried there.

Marilyn McKay Bender is the Cemetery's vice president of the board of directors, and she and Cecil McKay, Jr. have a "deeply ingrained spark of responsibility" for the Cemetery, says Laura. It has been designated a "historic cemetery" by the State of Oregon and is one of the last privately held cemeteries in Clackamas County, which means it is not maintained by the city or county. Thus, it is in need of volunteers to help preserve its historical integrity. There are several ways to help maintain the property and the Cemetery welcomes anyone who is interested in helping by serving on the Board, providing legal advice, or helping to pick up trash, fallen limbs, and dead bouquet materials (vases, cans, deteriorated tokens, etcetera). "We also are in desperate need of volunteers to learn how to mark grave sites when a new burial is necessary," says Laura. Call Laura at 503-632-3564 for details on how you can get involved in preserving this historic landmark.

When we learn a bit about the history of Beavercreek and its residents, it is easy to feel a deeper connection to it and to others. It was the act of kindness from Elias that filled an urgent community need over 130 years ago and it happened right here in our beloved Beavercreek. Each time you drive the curve on Kamrath Road, we hope you can remember the second act of kindness from Mr. Thomas Daniels that made things right for what is now known as the Beavercreek Memorial Cemetery.

November Hamlet Meeting Recap

Our featured guest for November -- Clackamas Fire District #1 -- was pulled away for an emergency call so was not able to present. We thank them for keeping us all safe, and wanted to share a couple updates on their behalf. First, Clackamas Fire is hiring. They are currently interviewing entry-level firefighter candidates and will be filling 15 vacancies in early 2018. Second, they are hosting the annual Operation Santa program to help those in need throughout our community by collecting and distributing new toys and non-perishable food. Donations can be made at community fire stations through December 11, as well as local businesses including Beavercreek Dental and Oregon City School District Transport. The program has been a part of Clackamas Fire District #1 since 1974. Additional info may be found on the Fire District's website at www.clackamasfire.com/operation-santa-claus/.

Resident Amy Manning gave an update on the traffic and child safety issue she brought to last month's meeting. Lack of parking at Beavercreek Elementary School is creating safety concerns. Amy organized a conversation at the school in November for representatives from the Hamlet board, Clackamas County, Oregon City School District, Oregon City School Board, parents, residents, and others. The County's traffic safety division reviewed issues during pickup time and is looking into options for signage and creating a safer shoulder on Steiner Road. They also suggested looking into the Safe Routes to School Program that encourages students to walk and bike to school, which also has grant money potentially available to help with a safer infrastructure.

The School Board representative acknowledged that the issue of traffic and pedestrian safety has been a significant topic for the school district for the last several years, suggesting that the schools were not designed to handle the level of traffic and vehicles we have today. The biggest challenge has been funding, and they have been exploring options. Amy is planning another meeting to take place in January. If you'd like to get involved, call Amy at 503-632-8785.

Two land use applications were discussed: a resident on Kamrath Road requesting review of a proposed milk processing facility that will take up only a portion of an existing 32'x60' shop at the center of the subject property; and residents on McBurney Road requesting a new temporary dwelling for care permit. One land use activity was discussed: a resident on Beavercreek Road requested the renewal of a temporary dwelling for care permit.

There will not be a community meeting in December. The next Town Hall meeting is January 24, 2018 at 7:00 p.m. at the Beavercreek Grange.

See you Saturday Dec. 2 for the Community Potluck and Annual Tree Lighting!

The Hamlet of Beavercreek is here to serve the community and to protect and preserve the rural culture of the area. Hamlet meetings include guest speakers from the community, land use applications and activities, and Hamlet business, as well as serving as an open forum for Hamlet residents. Monthly meetings are the best place to share feedback and learn how to get involved. We hope you'll join us!

Conquering the Mountain... of Manure (Pt. 1)

By Clackamas Soil & Water Conservation District

What to do with the Poo

A reality of having livestock is the accumulation of manure from stall cleanouts and picking in heavy use areas. A horse produces 50 pounds of manure per day.

Manure and bedding for a horse in a single year can exceed 25 cubic yards. When multiplied by a number of animals, you can accumulate a very large pile in a short time. Having a Nutrient Management Plan can make the difference between viewing this accumulation as an inexpensive and nutrient rich soil amendment, or just a big pile of waste. Here are a few options:

Cover It!

Tarp piles in winter to prevent nutrients leaching through the pile due to rainfall.

Lost nutrients = pollution

Compost It!

Compost methods include aerated, windrow, static pile, turned pile, etc. Final product is a safe, stable slow release soil amendment.

Spread It!

Generally, a $\frac{1}{4}$ " application of manure or compost can be spread once or twice annually (avoiding the wet season). Each acre treated will utilize about 33 cubic yards of material per $\frac{1}{4}$ " application.

Export it!

If no plan is made to safely utilize the manure it may be hauled to a landfill which is expensive. Composted manure may be sold or shared. Finding a reliable taker of the product may require some searching and relationship development.

The Scoop on Compost

Composting can reduce pile volume between 30 to 70% depending on what is being composted. Factors include: volume of materials, size of materials, moisture content, bulk density, and carbon to nitrogen ratio. To compost successfully you must achieve temperatures of over 130° F. The National Organic Program recommends exceeding 131° F for 15 days and turning the pile at least five times. These temperatures will kill weed seeds and pathogens. Regular turning or aeration will cause an active or thermal phase of composting dominated by soil bacteria that will last 1-2 months. Then, when the pile begins to cool off, the curing phase begins and continues for an additional 1-4 months. This allows time for fungi to colonize and develop a rich soil amendment. Without turning or aeration, the composting process may take a year or more and may not reach the required temperatures to kill weed seeds and parasites.

The ideal environment for successful composting is achieving 50% moisture content (like a wrung out sponge) and a ratio of 30:1, Carbon (browns): Nitrogen (greens). Manure is considered the nitrogen source and bedding (straw, wood) is the carbon source. Horse manure is excreted at nearly this ideal ratio, so it is important to minimize extra carbon from bedding. Using excess wood shavings increases the carbon source and slows the composting process. It may also lock up nutrients in the soil if the manure is directly field applied. Consider adding a high nitrogen source to counter the high carbon when composting or before spreading compost with excess wood shavings. High sources of nitrogen include blood meal, bone meal, or straight nitrogen fertilizer.

Also consider using smaller bedding particles as they will break down and compost quicker. By some accounts, straw, rice hulls, and shredded paper compost ten times faster than wood shavings! Be aware that compressed pellets (large wood chips) are difficult to compost.

Try to separate out as much clean or minimally contaminated bedding as possible for other uses such as mulch, trails, or stockpiles for future composting. Using stall mats greatly reduces the need for bedding, you only need to use bedding in areas animals use for waste.

The take home message is to be selective in your stall cleaning. Only the soiled bedding needs to be removed and composted. Often entire stalls are completely cleaned out and replaced with fresh bedding. In this case, much of the bedding removed is uncontaminated. Selective cleaning results in less waste to compost!

On the upside, compost can be a great resource for use on your own land, or for export as a soil amendment to neighbors, gardeners, or farmers. Retail sale as a soil amendment may be possible, but often requires a certification. Soil amendments and fertilizers must be registered before they may be sold commercially. For more information, check out this website.

What Goes in Must Come Out

To improve the attributes and quality of your manure or compost, consider what goes into the animal before it comes out as manure. Document herbicide use in pastures, hay sources, and medications to make sure they aren't reducing the value of your compost. Certain broadleaf weed herbicides (for example those containing picloram, aminopyrilid, clorpyrilid) can persist in dry hay for up to three years, and in compost for an extended time. If these chemicals have been used, compost should only be used on your own grass fields, not exported. Excess livestock medications that persist in compost can also be a concern for some organic growers or food producers.

Protect yourself! As a consumer, ask questions about the products you are purchasing. Also consider certifications. Yes, you may pay more, but you also know more about the product when buying animal feeds, wood products, compost, and soil amendments (Weed Free Forage, OMRI, Sustainable Forestry, etc.). ODA maintains a weed free forage certification program that is becoming increasingly popular for both buyers and sellers.

Holiday Scams

Shopping Scams

Fake websites are prevalent this time of year.

You search for a particular item and find it on a professional looking website. Lucky you -- the price is especially low considering it is allegedly a name-brand product or hard-to-get item. Warning signs that your great deal is going to be a big bust:

- * The site isn't secure. (You should look for the lock symbol and an "s" at the end of the "http" portion of the site's URL).
- * The site doesn't have contact information for customer issues.
- * The seller requires you to use a wire transfer or gift card to pay.

If you get taken by a fake website, the item you paid for will either be a cheap counterfeit or will never show up at all. If you are buying tickets to an event, make sure you go through the team or act's website -- or a reputable reseller. You don't want to show up and find out that you are locked out. Finally with gift cards -- don't respond to emails or texts offering discounts. You may be clicking on a phishing attack where the fraudster wants to steal your personally identifiable information. Likewise, if you are buying gift cards in a store -- ensure that there is a secure PIN on the back and that it hasn't already been scratched off and covered up. Fraudsters often record card numbers, wait for you to activate the cards and then cash them out before you've even gifted them to your friend.

Shop smartly and keep a list of everything you purchase online this holiday season, who or where you bought it from and when it should arrive. In the chaos of the season, you may not even realize that your must-have item is a no-show until it is too late.

If you have been a victim of a cyber scam, make sure to file a report with the FBI's Internet Crime Complaint Center at www.ic3.gov.

Utility Scams

Many utility customers throughout Oregon are being targeted by impostor utility scams. Scammers typically use phone and in-person tactics to target these customers. Scammers pose as electric or natural gas company employees, and threaten customers with disconnection if they fail to make an immediate payment -- typically using a prepaid card or other non-traceable form of payment.

Scammers can be very convincing and often target those who are most vulnerable, including senior citizens and low-income communities. They also aim their scams at small business owners during busy customer service hours. However, with the right information, customers can learn to detect and report these predatory scams.

* If someone threatens immediate disconnection or shutoff of service, customers should contact their utility company immediately. Customers with delinquent accounts receive a disconnection notice in advance by mail. Companies never send a single notification one hour or less before disconnection. A legitimate utility company employee will allow the customer to call the office to discuss arrangements.

* If customers suspect someone is trying to scam them, they should state that they are calling their utility company for verification. They should then call the number on their monthly bill or the company's website, not the phone number the scammer provides. If customers ever feel that they are in physical danger, they should call 911.

Customers who suspect that they have been victims of fraud, or who feel threatened during contact with one of these scammers, should contact local law enforcement authorities.

Clackamas County Jail Seeks Input on ADA Transition Plan

<http://www.clackamas.us/sheriff/jailada.html>

The Clackamas County Jail is in the process of updating its ADA Self-Survey and Transition Plan -- and the Sheriff's Office is seeking the public's input. The Transition Plan will be used as a guide for making improvements that will facilitate accessibility -- by removing physical impediments in the Clackamas County Jail and improving current levels of service in any Jail policies, programs, and procedures that could create barriers to accessibility for persons with disabilities.

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) mandates that the Clackamas County Jail identify the hindrances encountered with disabilities. Upon completion of this self-survey component, the Transition Plan will outline a strategy for prioritizing such improvements -- considering such factors as the extent of deficiency, identified need, available budget, and realistic schedule.

The Transition Plan will ultimately formulate the Jail's strategy for transitioning to a fully accessible facility. The Clackamas County Jail is seeking public input. All suggestions, comments, or specific deficiencies should be brought to the Jail's attention by January 31, 2018, so that they may be evaluated and included in the self-evaluation. This can be done by contacting Lieutenant Rollins, ADA Coordinator, preferably via e-mail at toddrol@co.clackamas.or.us or by phone at 503-722-6702. You may also send any comments or suggestions by snail-mail to:

Wing It Holiday Magic ($)

December 2 and 9, 10:30am
CCC Osterman Theatre

"Wing It" is an interactive series for children ages 2-10, written and directed by Travis Nodurft. The newest installment in the series, "Wing It Holiday Magic" invites audience members to join the forest friends as they solve another one of life's mysteries and have some fun along the way. It's fun for the entire family, with the audience encouraged to participate in songs and dances. Each performance will also include a visit by a very special guest from the North Pole. Tickets are $5 and can be purchased at the door. For more information, call 503-594-6047 or visit www.ClackamasRep.org.

Christmas Bazaar
