August Hamlet Town Hall Recap

Guest speakers this month were Surveyor Lee Spurgeon, BCT's Dick Orr, and County Liaison Katie Wilson. Lee gave a history lesson on surveying in Clackamas County including land boundaries, Oregon donation land claims, township system, and sections and divisions. He said that a modern survey relies on previous surveys and records, trustworthy surveyors, and set monuments. If a given piece of property has monuments set around it in the township/section, it will be much easier (cheaper). Most surveys will mix traditional survey methods and modern GPS, which has limitations under a canopy or in a rocky area. Oregon has an "adverse possession law" meaning the burden of proof is on the supposed possessor.

Dick gave an update on the EZVideo services, which are available to cable broadband internet service areas. Information is in the BCT August newsletter. The website was also redesigned to make it easy to use, and has lots of information.

Katie Wilson shared that the Committee for Community Involvement (CCI) has been looking at Community Planning Organizations (CPO) that have become inactive and looking for existing CPOs that might take over those areas. For example, Sunnyside United Neighbors (SUN) is supporting the West Mt. Scott area after people in the area expressed interest and Katie helped get SUN involved. She visited SUN, chatted about pros/cons of merging or not merging and the citizens are continuing the conversation in future meetings. There are 24 active CPOs in Clackamas with about half being inactive.

Beavercreek Hamlet CPO may have an opportunity to merge the Carus CPO. Residents discussed pros and cons. One suggested that inactive CPOs mean rural voices are not heard, giving Oregon City the ability to encroach on boundaries and resources. Another shared that the Carus CPO may not have knowledge about the laws and policies and thus can't support its residents. Further discussion needed.

All land use activities were supported by residents. The Hamlet Board also gave an update on Accessory Dwelling Units (ADU).

The State mandates one ADU within urban growth boundary 900 sq ft. County may elect to permit conversion to ADU for homes built between 1850 and 1945 outside the Urban Growth Boundaries and urban reserves for land greater than two acres in size. Discussion ensued.

The Board shared that the Park Place annex was approved. Christine Kosinski is going back to the City of Oregon City to talk about people on Redland whose wells are going dry as the water table is dropping. Bill Merchant shared that ODOT has been talking a lot about public transportation, discussing needs both urban and rural. They will be presenting in September to the Oregon Transportation commission. Oregon also has a task force to review and discuss autonomous vehicles, and the State has a mandate from House Bill 2017 to look at toll roads. There is a general prohibition against tolling on federal highways (interstates), but there are exceptions. ODOT to make a recommendation by September.

The Board shared a revision to the bylaws (hard copies available at the event), which were voted on and approved. The Hamlet's budget was approved by the County. And finally, a reminder that Hamlet Board of Directors elections are in October. Please reach out to info@beavercreek.org for info and to apply. Happy summer!

Total Burn Ban in Clackamas County

Clackamas Fire District #1 fire officials in coordination with the Oregon Department of Forestry have issued a total outdoor burn ban for all areas within the Fire District and moved the fire danger level to EXTREME, beginning Wednesday, July 25, 2018 at 12:00 p.m. The burn ban was issued due to high temperatures, extremely dry conditions, and lack of any recent rainfall. "The Fire District will likely stay in a total burn ban until the end of fire season and conditions change," said Deputy Chief Doug Whiteley. The ban includes no outdoor fires of any kind, such as recreational campfires, fire pits, yard debris, and agricultural burning.

Residents living in rural areas are encouraged to take steps to protect their homes and structures by maintaining defensible space from any vegetation. Additionally, they should ensure adequate access on their property for firefighting equipment. Unlawful outdoor fires during a declared fire district-wide burn ban are deemed a hazard to public safety and could result in a Fire District response, fire extinguishment, and invoicing of cost recovery fees for Fire District actions taken.

New Porous Pavement Fact Sheet Available

By Cathy McQueeney, Clackamas Soil & Water Conservation District

A new fact sheet on porous pavement is now available from Oregon State University. Porous pavement, also known as permeable or pervious pavement, allows rain and stormwater to soak into the soil instead of creating run-off. Its design includes open, porous spaces within the pavement that allows water to permeate into underlying soils.

Most of the roads and surface walkways used by pedestrians and vehicles in urban areas are made from impervious pavement. Impervious pavement does NOT allow water to permeate into the underlying soil. Instead, rains cause water to collect and travel along these impenetrable surfaces, picking up dirt, oil, and other contaminants. This stormwater is then either dumped directly into our streams and rivers or is added to the sewage collection system that is processed in our water treatment plants.

Allowing rain and stormwater to filter down through soils naturally keeps our streams and rivers clean and takes pressure and expense off of our water treatment facilities. In most cases, porous pavement can substitute for conventional, impervious pavements without the need for any additional stormwater management feature such as a detention basin, swale, or rain garden. Final Rate Decisions for 2018 Health Plans

Small businesses and individuals who buy their own health insurance can now see the Division of Financial Regulation's final rate decisions for 2019 health insurance plans. The division reviews and approves rates through a detailed and transparent process before they can be charged to policyholders. Open enrollment for 2019 plans is from Nov. 1 to Dec. 15, 2018.

Individual market: The division has issued final decisions for seven companies in the individual market with average rate changes ranging from a 9.6 percent decrease to a 10.1 percent increase. Under the decisions, Silver Standard Plan premiums for a 40-year-old in Portland would range from $415 to $486 a month.

The final decisions include a 1.1 percent reduction of the preliminary approved rate of Providence, which was lowered from 10.6 percent to 9.5 percent due to updated loss experience data. Its initial rate request was 13.6 percent. The only other change was to Kaiser Foundation Health Plan. The individual rate was adjusted slightly from an increase of 9.2 percent to 9.4 percent. Kaiser's initial rate request was 14.3 percent.

The rate changes are company-wide averages based on premiums for plans before financial assistance through Oregon's Health Insurance Marketplace is taken into account. All Oregonians who purchase their own insurance are encouraged to apply for assistance through the Marketplace for 2019, even if they did not qualify last year. In 2018, Oregonians who received help with the costs of their health insurance paid on average $138 a month.

See the chart at <https://dfr.oregon.gov/healthrates/Documents/2019-fnl-prpsd-rates.pdf> for the full list of decisions.

Soil Health and the Cotton Brief Challenge – Part 1

By Lisa Kilders, Clackamas Soil & Water Conservation District

Are you curious about the health of your soil? Join a group of local farmers and home gardeners who are burying cotton underwear to assess the biological activity of their soil and the soil health. Fifteen pairs of 100% cotton briefs have been buried across Clackamas County! Over the next two months, soil microbes will be breaking down the cotton. Then what?

After two months the briefs will be dug up. The more shredded and ragged the briefs, the healthier the soil. If the briefs look a lot like they did when they were buried, then there is some work to be done in making the soil healthier.

How does this experiment work? A healthy soil is full of bacteria, fungi, arthropods, protozoa, and earthworms. You see, 100% cotton is a food source for the microbes and other organisms in the soil. This is why after two months in the ground, the worse looking the briefs, the more biological activity you have in your soil. Biologically active soil is healthy soil.

Want to test your own soil?
Here is what you do to join in the fun:

It's a good thing when you're shopping for insurance.

Independent insurance agents don't work for just one company and that means better choices for you. They can check out your coverage and compare rates with multiple insurance companies to make sure you are getting a great rate.

Please call Bonnie Anderson at Sahli Miller Insurance, your local independent agent, for expert advice and a free quote.

Call today! 503-850-6391 Sahli Miller Insurance

Why is Lisa planting undies in the ground? Read the "Cotton Brief Challenge" article.

- Find a pair of 100% cotton underwear (undyed). Take a photo of your briefs for future comparison.
- Dig a hole 6 to 8 inches deep. This is the root zone where most of the biological activity occurs.
- Lay your briefs flat in the hole and cover with soil. Because it is summer and the soil is dry, you will need to water periodically unless the area is irrigated.
- After two months, dig up your briefs and compare them to the photo you took in the beginning.

If you wish to share your soil health results locally on social media, use hashtag #ClackBriefs or share your results nationally with hashtag #SoilYourUndies.

Where did this activity start?

This highly visual way of demonstrating what is going on in the soil began with a Farmers Guild in California. It was taken up by a number of farmers in the Midwest and has taken off in Canada. The Soil Conservation Council of Canada holds an annual national soil conservation week where they encourage farmers and gardeners to test the health of their soil by burying cotton briefs. Even farmers in Scotland and England are burying their underwear in the name of soil health!

Why does soil health matter?

The increased popularity in home gardening and growing your own food, plus the ever-present interest of farmers in producing healthier crops and forage, has people thinking deeply about soil health. Healthy soils are more productive which means your crops – be it a backyard garden or 80 acres of hazelnuts – will be healthier and produce higher yields. Healthy soil also requires less fertilizer, has better water infiltration, and improved water holding capacity. This reduces soil erosion and irrigation requirements. And healthy soil is climate-friendly because it can hold more carbon.

Watch for the next installment of Soil Health and the Cotton Brief Challenge. Use hashtag #SoilYourUndies to spread the word about the Cotton Brief Challenge!

Preparing for Natural Disasters

While strangers will reach out to help others during a natural disaster, scammers make situations worse by trying to take advantage of victims. BBB reminds those affected by natural disasters to beware of out-of-town contractors soliciting businesses with ill intentions. While they may not all be frauds, they may lack the proper licensing for your area, offer quick fixes or make big promises they can't deliver. The con artists typically show up after a natural disaster offering to help with cleanup for a low cost. Be sure to research any company before doing business with them and never be pressured into making quick decisions when solicited by a contractor.

Remember, it's just as important to be prepared before disaster strikes.

Here are some steps you can take to get your home and business ready:

- Keep documents secure. Store your documents in a safe place that is easy to access such as a safe deposit box. This includes your Social Security card, birth certificate, passport and any other official, hard-to-replace documents. Documents not kept in a safe can land in the wrong hands.

- Have a plan. Familiarize yourself with your town's emergency plans for shelter and evacuation. Have a list of emergency contacts, the locations frequented by family members and know the specific needs of household members, including animals.

Newly Restored Oregon Constitution

Following a massive statewide crowdfunding campaign, the newly restored Oregon Constitution is now on view at the Oregon Historical Society through September 3, 2018. What started as a penny drive targeted at Oregon students to raise funds to preserve and exhibit the original 1857 Oregon Constitution turned into over $100,000 raised to restore this historic document. The Oregon Historical Society is proud to have joined many Oregonians in contributing to this effort, and is the first location outside of the Oregon State Archives in Salem to host the document.

Mary Beth Herkert, Director of the State Archives Division, shared an overview of the restoration in a video on Facebook and the NEDCC further details the complex conservation process. Steps included repairing pages that were loose from the binding (while preserving the original binding), as well as essentially giving the pages a "bath" in order to clean the pages that were starting to discolor due to the type of ink that was used in writing the document. The full effort took a single conservationist four months to complete.

While the constitution is on view, the Oregon Historical Society will host two free public programs in the month of August to invite conversation around this important founding document on August 8 and August 15 (see events calendar). To learn more about Oregon's road to statehood and the constructing of Oregon's Constitution, visit www.ohs.org/constitution. View this historic document now through September 3, 2018 at the Oregon Historical Society (1200 SW Park Avenue, Portland).

Long-Term Care Referral Agents to Join Registry

House Bill 2661, which goes into effect this week, increases protections for consumers who use agents to find a long-term care facility. Long-term care referral agents, who receive at least $1,000 in compensation from long-term care facilities, must now register with the State of Oregon to continue doing business here. Agents will need to demonstrate to the Department of Human Services (DHS) that they meet the bill's operating and disclosure requirements to do business in Oregon. These requirements include ensuring that independent agents and any employees of referral companies who have direct contact with a client, have submitted to a background check.

Oregon is among the first states in the nation to provide a registry and regulations for long-term care referral agents. The registry will provide Oregonians, who prefer to work with an agent, a means to search online for one of the many reputable companies that operate in Oregon. For more information about the law and how to register as an agent, please visit: ltcr.oregon.gov.

How to Avoid Email Loan Frauds

Fraudsters have been trying to find ways to steal money for as long as people have been using money. Not surprisingly, every day these scam artists are testing new methods to separate you from your hard-earned cash. This year alone the Better Business Bureau has seen a large number of scam reports involving fake loan email messages.

Here's how it works: You are perusing through your email inbox and notice that you have received an unexpected email stating that you have pre-qualified for a loan or been approved for a loan. All of the information regarding the loan – including the final payback amount—are included in the email. Many of these messages will include an attached file that appears to be an official document approved by several government agencies. However, you will come to find out that there is a tiny little requirement before you can receive your loan – an “upfront” fee of $150. If you pay this, you are likely to lose your 150 bucks and never get the loan itself.

Here are some tips to avoid email phishing scams:

If someone you don't know unexpectedly contacts you with an amazing deal, be cautious. It is probably too good to be true. Never click on or download attachments from an unknown source. Scam artists will often camouflage malware in these attachments, and if you click on them, they will have access to your computer and your personal information. If you do choose to click on the link, hover over it first to see what the real destination is.

If you receive a request to "verify that your account information is correct in order to send the loan proceeds"... watch out. You should never provide account information or other sensitive personal information to a solicitor. Look for some dead giveaway signs. If there is no personal information in the email, such as your name, then it could be a mass email that the scammer sent out. Additionally, look for spelling errors or typos.

If you have been victimized by this online scam or any other cyber fraud, be sure to also report it to the FBI's Internet Crime Complaint Center at www.ic3.gov or call your local FBI office.

Join Manuel Padilla for a dialogue on the foundations of citizenship in the Oregon constitution. The discussion will explore the local people that shaped this concept of citizenship and will then situate the conversations of the past in the current socio-political climate of the present. Have we progressed beyond the considerations and limitations of 1857? Have we transcended past Oregonians' debates over belonging? Or, is there something of us in them, and something of them in us today?
